Allied Push Threatens New Red Base

Probers Will Give MacArthur Opportunity To Testify Again

Johnson Believes "We Could Lick Russia Right Now" If Reds Decide To Pick Fight

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—Chairman Russell (D-Ga) today extended an open invitation to Gen. Douglas MacArthur to return for further testimony before the Senate committee investigating the five-star general's ouster.

Russell said MacArthur will get a chance to testify again, if he desires, because all the other witnesses had a chance to read his testimony before offering their own.

Russell made the announcement as former Secretary of Defense Johnson, concluded his testimony, told the inquiry committee he believes "we could lick Russia right now" if the Soviets decided to pick a fight.

But Johnson said he would not advocate any bold new strategy for winning the Korean war if it would touch off World War III.

Industrial Might Deters

"I do not think war is inevitable," Johnson said. "I don't think Russia is ready for war, although a pistol shot might start one."

The former defense chief, who was in the witness chair two days, said he believes America's growing military strength, backed by powerful atomic weapons, "will preevnt a war for a reasonable length of time."

One thing Russia "respects and fears" is the industrial might of the United States, he said.

Chairman Russell told newsmen that if Gen. MacArthur accepts the invitation to return to Capitol Hill and brings up "new matters," it may be necessary to recall Secretary of Defense Marshall and the Joint Chiefs of Staff for further questioning.

Russell said he was calling off plans to hear W. Averell Harriman, President's Truman's special adviser, on Monday.

He said a seven-member subcommittee has recommended that the long-drawn inquiry be closed within the next 15 days, and the full 26-member inquiry committee will act on the recommendation Monday. It will also decide on all future witnesses then, Russell added.

Would Revamp State Dept.

He said the list of proposed witnesses may undergo a "drastic reduction."

Johnson hinted strongly that he felt the State Department was attempting to dominate the military and was invading the military's realm of authority.

Calling for a reorganization of the State Department, Johnson said it should be the country's "diplomatic agent and not be all over the lot, handling economic aid and everything else."

Specifically, he said the State Department should not be permitted to administer military aid to North Atlantic Treaty countries.

"It gives me great cause for concern," he said, "because military matters ought to be handled by the military brethren."

West Makes New Bid To Moscow For Big 4 Parley

Chance To Denounce Pact, Russia Told

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — The Western Powers made a new bid to Russia today for a Big Four foreign ministers meeting to ease tensions in Europe.

They assured the Russians they would get a chance to denounce the North Atlantic defense pact and American bases abroad even though these subjects are not on the agenda.

This being true, the West told Moscow the ministers should be able to meet promptly — that is, July 23 in Washington.

Secretary of State Acheson and the British and French Foreign ministers made the bid in separate but identical messages to Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky. They ought to demolish Russia's refusal to accept unconditionally the recent American invitation for a meeting here. One aim of the notes was to gain for the West full credit for willingness to hold four power talks.

The whole argument, superficially at least, now resolves around the question whether the Atlantic Treaty and American military bases abroad should be included in the lists of subject for discussion. Russia in preliminary negotiation among deputy foreign ministers in Paris, has insisted that the treaty and bases are principal causes of world tensions and therefore must be listed.

The Western Powers contended today that because they are only three of the 12 nations which belong to the Atlantic pact and Russia is not a party at all, any decision on the alliance would be completely outside "the competence of the meeting of ministers."

Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, told reporters more directly that "the United States is not and never has been prepared to go behind the backs of its allies and deal with matters involving the security and national interests of those allies in conferences in which their governments are not represented."

Medical Corps Man Wins Medal Of Honor

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—As a Medical Corps man, Pfc. Richard G. Wilson did not carry a weapon.

His job was to care for the wounded. He died doing it in Korea last Oct. 21. Unarmed, he had returned to a bullet-swept ambush to rescue a wounded comrade.

Today, in death, Pfc. Wilson was awarded the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military decoration.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will present the medal to Wilson's widow, Mrs. Yvonne L. Wilson, Cape Girardeau, Mo., at a ceremony in the Pentagon June 21.

U. S. Gives India Helping Hand

President Truman holds papers flat on his desk as Madame Vijaya Pandit, Indian Ambassador to the United States, prepares to sign a contract for the purchase of up to 2,000,000 tons of good grain on credit to help India fight off a famine. Earlier in the White House ceremony, the President signed a bill authorizing a loan of $190,000,000 to India to pay for the grain.

East And Gulf Coast Sailor Strike Looms

President Refuses To Step Into Dispute

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—The threat of a West coast maritime strike faded tonight but East and Gulf coast walkouts appeared imminent as the midnight deadline approached.

West coast shipping unions extended contract negotiations beyond the deadline or began balloting on tentative agreements.

Contract talks concerning three East and Gulf coast unions have been deadlocked here for days on contract issues.

Hope of averting the eastern walkouts waned late in the day when President Truman declined to step into the dispute.

Even before that, some ship departures were reported delayed by crewmen's complaints of equipment not being in working order.

In previous years, before contract deadlines, some crews held up sailings on long voyages until they were assured of satisfactory contracts.

The three CIO unions involved in the current contract dispute want a 40-hour work week at sea, higher wages and other benefits.

A committee representing 40 shipping companies remained in session with union representatives here trying to agree on terms, but there were no hopeful signs. The present contract with the unions expires at midnight (local time).

Frank J. Taylor, head of the committee for the companies, telegraphed President Truman, asking him to invoke the 80-day cooling off period provided under the Taft-Hartley law.

Joseph Curran, president of the 50,000-member National Maritime Union, one of those involved in the dispute, also telegraphed the President, assuring him that any work stoppage would not apply to vital defense and Korean cargoes.

Senate Unit Votes To Renew Rent Curbs But Raise Ceiling

Committee Would Permit 20% Hike Above '42 Lids, Cover New Areas If Necessary

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee voted today to renew and expand the government's huge rent control program. But it recommended a raise in some of the rent ceilings.

Existing controls on about 7,000,000 private dwellings expire June 30. Shaping up a new regulation, the committee agreed to permit rents to rise 20 per cent above the 1942 ceilings in areas which came under control during the last war or shortly after it.

What this means in dollars and cents, and how many tenants it will affect, was not known immediately. The 190 areas of the country under federal rent control already have received increases of from 10 to 30 per cent above 1942 levels. A total of 138 of them have allowed landlords to raise rents 15 per cent. So in those cases any further boost would be only five per cent.

Would Control New Areas

New areas could be brought under control if such action was deemed critically necessary to the defense effort.

The Senate committee wrote into the bill provisions to permit greater than 20 per cent rent increases to landlords who can prove genuine hardship.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) and Republican colleagues tried to put through a 37 per cent raise for the landlords, but Sen. Moody (D-Mich) reported a majority of the committee felt that figure would be inflationary. Committee sources said there would be no rollback of rents which have risen more than 20 per cent.

Rents on areas added to the program in the future would be frozen at June, 1950, levels. The government has about 120 areas under consideration for addition to the new program.

As it now stands in committee, the bill would impose controls in "critical defense areas" designated by Secretary of Defense Marshall and Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson.

GE Wage Hike Approved

But it would not interfere with state or local rent control programs as long as they hold rentals effectively in line with those in similar communities in other parts of the nation.

Agreement has not been reached yet on the period for which rent controls will be extended after the prsent law expires June 30. The period probably will coincide with effective dates of general control legislation.

In another area of controls, the Wage Stablization Board approved today a nine cents an hour wage boost for 100,000 General Electric Corporation workers. The increase will give them the same cost-of-living adjustments recently obtained by other G. E. workers, who are members of the CIO International Union of Electrical Workers.

No 10% Pay Lid, WSB Head Says

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — The head of the government's Wage Stabilization Board said today there is no hard and fast 10 per cent "ceiling" on wage increases — that many factors may permit advances beyond that line.

Addressing the Machinery and Allied Products Institute, Chairman George Taylor complained that the board "Is said to be regularly handing out 'over-the-ceiling' wage increases to be 'puncturing' or 'piercing' its own 'ceiling', x x x

"In the first place," Taylor continued, the board "has imposed no inflexible ceiling to be violated; and, in the second place, we do not 'grant' wage increases. We act upon agreements made or decisions made by management as to wage increases."

He said the "misconception" about a "rigid" wage ceiling stems from the 10 per cent "catch-up formula" last February.

"However, and this is an important distinction," he said, "the 10 per cent is simply a figure up to which wages may be increased over the base date (Jan. 15, 1950) without getting approval from the Wage Stabilization Board."

Cylinder In Junk Yard Takes Off, Kills Negro

ATLANTA, June 15 (AP)—A small metal cylinder in a junk heap suddenly became energized today. Streaking through the air with the speed of a rocket, it killed one man and narrowly missed a woman walking along the street.

Dead was Lennis Dallas, 34-year-old negro. Part of his head was torn away when the projectile struck him after narrowly missing another negro, Lela Dawson, 44, as they were walking past an alley near the junk yard.

Police theorized that the oxygen-filled steel container was heated by the sun and jet-propelled itself from the junk heap when a screw type valve loosened.

HOLLYWOOD, June 15 (AP) — Spokesmen for Howard Hughes and RKO Studio today denied a published report that Louis R. Lurie, San Francisco financier, has offered approximately $6,500,000 for Hughes' interest in the movie company.

Korean War Back In Stage Of "Where Do We Go Now"

TOKYO, Saturday, June 16 (AP)—The Korean war is back in the "where do we go from here?" stage.

This presents some interesting possibilities for a victorious United Nations army that now is calling the shots.

The power-packed Eighth Army has overrun the Chinese Reds' "iron triangle," the Central Korean concentration area from which the Communists mounted their two unsuccessful spring offensives.

Now Allied tank patrols are probing north in the valley above the rubbled towns that once swarmed with Red soldiers.

The "where do we go from here" question is three-fold:

1. Will the Allies try to spring a trap on the Communists along the central and eastern fronts by charging north from Pyonggang along the 52-mile valley corridor to the port of Wonsan while other forces sweep up the coast?

2. Will the Allies try to establish a line across the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula from Wonsan on the east to the west coast north of Pyongyang, the Red capital?

3. Will Allied commanders be content to shove their line slowly forward, keeping the enemy off balance while hoping the Chinese eventually will tire of their staggering losses and seek a cease-fire?

The answer militarily lies with the Eighth Army. It has proved conclusively that it cannot be pushed out of Korea by the forces the Chinese thus far have been willing to gamble.

Third-Round Enemy Drive Is Predicted

U. N. Troops Within 9 Miles Of Kumsong

TOKYO, Saturday, June 16 (AP)—Communist armies were in retreat deeper into North Korea along most of the front today, and they chose to stand and fight only where their escape routes were imperiled.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, warned on a flying visit to the front, however, that he expected the Chinese Communists to loose a third big spring offensive.

He gave no hint of when he thought the blow might fall. But as he spoke enemy vehicles rumbled southward from the Manchurian border areas toward the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. An estimated 500 vehicles were brought under aerial attack.

The current Allied push, now threatening the new Red base of Kumsong 29 miles north of the parallel, has recovered all ground lost to the last enemy offensive, Van Fleet told correspondents. He predicated strategic ground gained would weaken any new Red drive.

Patrol Encounter Heavy Fire

The general headquarters communique said the enemy was withdrawing from strong defensive positions on the east-central front, where Communist resistance has been bitter.

Withdrawals also were spotted in the mountainous center of the front, and another deep pullback was believed in progress on the western front.

When Allied patrols or units advanced too fast, however, they ran into savage artillery and small arms fire.

Patrols ran into artillery fire as they moved out on the east-central front ahead of the main force driving north in an attempt to seal off Communist escape routes.

The Reds laid down intense barrages of motar and artillery fire in the Yanggu area at the eastern end of the Hwachon reservoir.

Northwest of there, bitter fighting raged in the hills east of Kumhwa.

With 9 Miles of Kumsong

There the enemy fought to stave off Allied forces closing in within nine miles of Kumsong, 29 miles north of the 38th parallel and reportedly the new Chinese redoubt in Central Korea.

Allied armored fingers were clutching at Kumsong from the west and south.

An Eighth Army communique said air observers reported a northward movement of the enemy northwest of Chorwon, southwest anchor of the Reds' onetime "iron triangle" staging area. This indicated the Reds had not yet ended their retreat in the center.

Allied planes struck north and northwest of Chorwon at big groups of Reds retreating slowly up tortuous trails with their pack animals.

Allied tanks, shrugging off small arms fire, clanked through a narrow gorge and into the Chupa area, nine miles south of Kumsong and 11 miles east of Allied-held Kumhwa.

But to the west, Reds fought fierce rearguard actions to protect their retreat route along the main Kumhwa-Kumsong road.

Communist Gunfire Kills Three Aboard American Warship

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — The Navy announced today that the destroyer-mine sweeper Thompson was hit by enemy fire off Korea yesterday, killing three and wounding four.

The ship was hit 10 times by shells fired from Communist batteries on shore.

The ship was hit 10 times by shells fired from Communist batteries on shore.

The wounded were transferred to another destroyer.

The Navy said the destroyer Arnold J. Isbell silenced the enemy guns with six direct hits.

The Thompson is the eighth U. S. ship lost or damaged by enemy gunfire or mines during the Korean war.

Two other ships were hit but were undamaged by enemy shelling.

Friendly Nations Dealing With Reds Will Get U. S. Aid

Ban Is Suspended By Security Council

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—President Truman and the National Security Council disclosed today a decision temporarily suspending operation of the Kem amendment to ban economic assistance to nations trading behind the iron curtain.

The council, of which the President is chairman, granted blanket exceptions for countries now receiving American assistance for a period up to a maximum of 90 days.

The council notified the Senate and House Foreign Affairs, Armed Services and Appropriations Committees of the exceptions.

It said the general suspension was to give opportunity for further examination of the varying situations of individual countries.

Bill Reluctantly Signed

The Kem amendment—sponsored by Sen. Kem (R-Mo)—was made a part of an appropriations bill President Truman reluctantly signed into law. It forbade the granting of further U. S. aid to any nation shipping war-useful goods to countries within the Soviet bloc.

At the time he signed the bill, Mr. Truman said he feared the Kem amendment would hamper traditional trade customs by which the Western democracies got needed items from Eastern Europe. He described the idea of a sweeping ban as unworkable.

The National Security Council includes the President, Vice President Barkley, Secretary of State Acheson and Secretary of Defense Marshall.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short made the announcement shortly after a batch of documents was sent up to the congressional committees.

"Interim General Exception"

"I want to emphasize that the determniation is an interim general exception," Short told reporters.

He said that items which would be covered by the Kem amendment included 1,700 categories of articles and commodities which could not be shipped to the Soviet bloc unless exemptions are certified to Congress by the Security Council.

While making the blanket exception, the council also granted specific exceptions to Norway and Austria.

BALTIMORE, June 15 (AP)—The Rev. Francis W. Kunkel, veteran faculty member at St. Mary's Catholic Seminary here, died today. He would have been 81 on July 9.

200 Orphans Led To Safety; Toll May Rise

Most Of Victims Elderly Women

MONTREAL, June 15 (AP)—Flames billowing up an elevator shaft raced through the Hospice Ste. Cunegonde today, killing at least 30 persons in the ancient five-story orphanage and old peoples' home.

About 400 children and old people lived in the house. Nearly all the dead were believed to be aged women occupying upper floors.

Among the dead was Mother Superior Rita Gervais of the Roman Catholic Grey Nuns, who operate the hospice. With her hands clasped as if in prayer, her body was found tonight by firemen still searching the debris hours after the first alarm sounded. Missing and believed dead is Sister Chauvin.

Assistant Police Inspector Herve Guimond fixed the death toll at 30. Fire Director Wilfrid Pare said an all-night search of the smoking building would be necessary before the exact number could be determined.

Flames Shoot Up Shaft

The flames started near the elevator shaft and shot up to the top floors with lightning speed. In ten minutes it had spread through hallways from front to back. The death toll first was set at two—then mounted steadily as firemen were able to work through the wreckage on the upper floors of the stone and wood home, 75 years old.

The old people in the home included about a dozen blind persons, and among the children were many cripples.

Women lived on the upper floors of the building. Aged men lived on the lower floors and most of them are believed to have escaped.

There were about 200 aged residents of the hospice and 200 children, many of them orphans. All the children were reported safe. Twenty-four nuns led them to safety.

Many of the rescued aged were taken to hospitals suffering from shock. Others were housed in a Knights of Columbus hall nearby. Firemen reported they found four bodies about a fourth-floor window and four more near a third-floor window. The body of one woman, believed to have been a cripple, was found in a rocking chair in an upper-floor room.

Woman Guides 12 To Safety

Mrs. Paul-Emile Gauthier, who lives just across the street from the hospice, saw from one of her windows the first puffs of flames.

Rushing across the street and through smoke-filled corridors to the second floor, she guided 12 people to safety. She had to make six trips into the flaming building, taking her charges to safety two at a time down a narrow fire-escape stair.

People leaned out of the floors high above the street, she said, calling: "God help us. God help us."

Rescuers carried several persons from the building on stretchers. They were taken to hospitals and homes nearby.

100-Year-Old Drug Cures Boy's Cancer

PARIS, June 15 (AP) — A seven-year-old boy stood before the French Academy of Surgery today, cured, his doctor said, of a hitherto deadly cancer by an almost forgotten 100-year-old drug with a jawbreaker name.

Prof. Aene Hugenin, medical director of the Villejuif Cancer Institute near Paris, said the boy had been cured of mayignant cancer of the kidney, which had started at the age of four, by use of the drug parahydroxypropiophenone. X-rays showed all signs of the cancerous growth had disappeared, Huguenin said.

Huguenin, who has been doing cancer research for 40 years, did not claim the drug is a general cure for cancer.

MacArthur Says Administration Would Avoid Responsibility Of War In Korea

DALLAS, June 15 (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared tonight that the Truman administration is trying to avoid the responsibility of war in Korea.

The five-star General, speaking in the huge Cotton Bowl, said the issue at stake is how best to win the war.

He said: "Some, with me, would achieve peace through a prompt and decisive victory at a saving of human life, others through appeasement and compromise of moral principle, with less regard for human life."

In effect, MacArthur told a crowd estimated officially at 27,500 that he has more concern for saving lives in Korea than the administration.

He said the American people have shown him that they will not be "misled by propaganda efforts to obscure the main issue."

And he added: "It offers assurance that the people will not be misled by those who, while defending the existing policy vacuum as the best means to preserve peace decry, as the advocacy of a policy which leads to war, the military measures which have been urged to bring the war now in progress to a prompt and victorious end."

With this statement, the General made it clear he believes the people are behind him in his proposals to bomb Manchuria, blockade the Red coast, and use Chinese Nationalist troops in Korea.

This was MacArthur's fourth speech in Texas in three days and his second today. At mid-day, speaking in San Antonio, he charged Secretary Acheson's defense of a 1949 State Department document on Formosa was nothing more than Russian-type propaganda.

In his evening speech, the General said of those who oppose his program:

"How fantastically unrealistic it is for them to refuse to accept the facuality that we are already at war — a bitter, savage and costly war.

"If all other evidence were ignored, our mounting dead would alone stand as mute evidence that it is war in which we are now actually engaged.

"Yet, despite this, they seek to avoid the grave responsibility inherent in the fact of war — seek to divert public thought from the basic issue which war creates — how may victory be achieved with a minimum of human sacrifice."

In previous years, before contract deadlines, some crews held up sailings on long voyages until they were assured of satisfactory contracts.

The three CIO unions involved in the current contract dispute want a 40-hour work week at sea, higher wages and other benefits.

A committee representing 40 shipping companies remained in session with union representatives here trying to agree on terms, but there were no hopeful signs. The present contract with the unions expires at midnight (local time).

Frank J. Taylor, head of the committee for the companies, telegraphed President Truman, asking him to invoke the 80-day cooling off period provided under the Taft-Hartley law.

Joseph Curran, president of the 50,000-member National Maritime Union, one of those involved in the dispute, also telegraphed the President, assuring him that any work stoppage would not apply to vital defense and Korean cargoes.

Senate Unit Votes To Renew Rent Curbs But Raise Ceiling

Committee Would Permit 20% Hike Above '42 Lids, Cover New Areas If Necessary

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee voted today to renew and expand the government's huge rent control program. But it recommended a raise in some of the rent ceilings.

Existing controls on about 7,000,000 private dwellings expire June 30. Shaping up a new regulation, the committee agreed to permit rents to rise 20 per cent above the 1942 ceilings in areas which came under control during the last war or shortly after it.

What this means in dollars and cents, and how many tenants it will affect, was not known immediately. The 190 areas of the country under federal rent control already have received increases of from 10 to 30 per cent above 1942 levels. A total of 138 of them have allowed landlords to raise rents 15 per cent. So in those cases any further boost would be only five per cent.

Would Control New Areas

New areas could be brought under control if such action was deemed critically necessary to the defense effort.

The Senate committee wrote into the bill provisions to permit greater than 20 per cent rent increases to landlords who can prove genuine hardship.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) and Republican colleagues tried to put through a 37 per cent raise for the landlords, but Sen. Moody (D-Mich) reported a majority of the committee felt that figure would be inflationary. Committee sources said there would be no rollback of rents which have risen more than 20 per cent.

Rents on areas added to the program in the future would be frozen at June, 1950, levels. The government has about 120 areas under consideration for addition to the new program.

As it now stands in committee, the bill would impose controls in "critical defense areas" designated by Secretary of Defense Marshall and Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson.

GE Wage Hike Approved

But it would not interfere with state or local rent control programs as long as they hold rentals effectively in line with those in similar communities in other parts of the nation.

Agreement has not been reached yet on the period for which rent controls will be extended after the prsent law expires June 30. The period probably will coincide with effective dates of general control legislation.

In another area of controls, the Wage Stablization Board approved today a nine cents an hour wage boost for 100,000 General Electric Corporation workers. The increase will give them the same cost-of-living adjustments recently obtained by other G. E. workers, who are members of the CIO International Union of Electrical Workers.

No 10% Pay Lid, WSB Head Says

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — The head of the government's Wage Stabilization Board said today there is no hard and fast 10 per cent "ceiling" on wage increases — that many factors may permit advances beyond that line.

Addressing the Machinery and Allied Products Institute, Chairman George Taylor complained that the board "Is said to be regularly handing out 'over-the-ceiling' wage increases to be 'puncturing' or 'piercing' its own 'ceiling', x x x

"In the first place," Taylor continued, the board "has imposed no inflexible ceiling to be violated; and, in the second place, we do not 'grant' wage increases. We act upon agreements made or decisions made by management as to wage increases."

He said the "misconception" about a "rigid" wage ceiling stems from the 10 per cent "catch-up formula" last February.

"However, and this is an important distinction," he said, "the 10 per cent is simply a figure up to which wages may be increased over the base date (Jan. 15, 1950) without getting approval from the Wage Stabilization Board."

Cylinder In Junk Yard Takes Off, Kills Negro

ATLANTA, June 15 (AP)—A small metal cylinder in a junk heap suddenly became energized today. Streaking through the air with the speed of a rocket, it killed one man and narrowly missed a woman walking along the street.

Dead was Lennis Dallas, 34-year-old negro. Part of his head was torn away when the projectile struck him after narrowly missing another negro, Lela Dawson, 44, as they were walking past an alley near the junk yard.

Police theorized that the oxygen-filled steel container was heated by the sun and jet-propelled itself from the junk heap when a screw type valve loosened.

Movie Deal Denied

HOLLYWOOD, June 15 (AP) — Spokesmen for Howard Hughes and RKO Studio today denied a published report that Louis R. Lurie, San Francisco financier, has offered approximately $6,500,000 for Hughes' interest in the movie company.

Korean War Back In Stage Of "Where Do We Go Now"

TOKYO, Saturday, June 16 (AP)—The Korean war is back in the "where do we go from here?" stage.

This presents some interesting possibilities for a victorious United Nations army that now is calling the shots.

The power-packed Eighth Army has overrun the Chinese Reds' "iron triangle," the Central Korean concentration area from which the Communists mounted their two unsuccessful spring offensives.

Now Allied tank patrols are probing north in the valley above the rubbled towns that once swarmed with Red soldiers.

The "where do we go from here" question is three-fold:

1. Will the Allies try to spring a trap on the Communists along the central and eastern fronts by charging north from Pyonggang along the 52-mile valley corridor to the port of Wonsan while other forces sweep up the coast?

2. Will the Allies try to establish a line across the narrow waist of the Korean peninsula from Wonsan on the east to the west coast north of Pyongyang, the Red capital?

3. Will Allied commanders be content to shove their line slowly forward, keeping the enemy off balance while hoping the Chinese eventually will tire of their staggering losses and seek a cease-fire?

The answer militarily lies with the Eighth Army. It has proved conclusively that it cannot be pushed out of Korea by the forces the Chinese thus far have been willing to gamble.

Third-Round Enemy Drive Is Predicted

U. N. Troops Within 9 Miles Of Kumsong

TOKYO, Saturday, June 16 (AP)—Communist armies were in retreat deeper into North Korea along most of the front today, and they chose to stand and fight only where their escape routes were imperiled.

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, warned on a flying visit to the front, however, that he expected the Chinese Communists to loose a third big spring offensive.

He gave no hint of when he thought the blow might fall. But as he spoke enemy vehicles rumbled southward from the Manchurian border areas toward the North Korean capital of Pyongyang. An estimated 500 vehicles were brought under aerial attack.

The current Allied push, now threatening the new Red base of Kumsong 29 miles north of the parallel, has recovered all ground lost to the last enemy offensive, Van Fleet told correspondents. He predicated strategic ground gained would weaken any new Red drive.

Patrol Encounter Heavy Fire

The general headquarters communique said the enemy was withdrawing from strong defensive positions on the east-central front, where Communist resistance has been bitter.

Withdrawals also were spotted in the mountainous center of the front, and another deep pullback was believed in progress on the western front.

When Allied patrols or units advanced too fast, however, they ran into savage artillery and small arms fire.

Patrols ran into artillery fire as they moved out on the east-central front ahead of the main force driving north in an attempt to seal off Communist escape routes.

The Reds laid down intense barrages of motar and artillery fire in the Yanggu area at the eastern end of the Hwachon reservoir.

Northwest of there, bitter fighting raged in the hills east of Kumhwa.

With 9 Miles of Kumsong

There the enemy fought to stave off Allied forces closing in within nine miles of Kumsong, 29 miles north of the 38th parallel and reportedly the new Chinese redoubt in Central Korea.

Allied armored fingers were clutching at Kumsong from the west and south.

An Eighth Army communique said air observers reported a northward movement of the enemy northwest of Chorwon, southwest anchor of the Reds' onetime "iron triangle" staging area. This indicated the Reds had not yet ended their retreat in the center.

Allied planes struck north and northwest of Chorwon at big groups of Reds retreating slowly up tortuous trails with their pack animals.

Allied tanks, shrugging off small arms fire, clanked through a narrow gorge and into the Chupa area, nine miles south of Kumsong and 11 miles east of Allied-held Kumhwa.

But to the west, Reds fought fierce rearguard actions to protect their retreat route along the main Kumhwa-Kumsong road.

Communist Gunfire Kills Three Aboard American Warship

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — The Navy announced today that the destroyer-mine sweeper Thompson was hit by enemy fire off Korea yesterday, killing three and wounding four.

The ship was hit 10 times by shells fired from Communist batteries on shore.

The ship was hit 10 times by shells fired from Communist batteries on shore.

The wounded were transferred to another destroyer.

The Navy said the destroyer Arnold J. Isbell silenced the enemy guns with six direct hits.

The Thompson is the eighth U. S. ship lost or damaged by enemy gunfire or mines during the Korean war.

Two other ships were hit but were undamaged by enemy shelling.

Friendly Nations Dealing With Reds Will Get U. S. Aid

Ban Is Suspended By Security Council

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—President Truman and the National Security Council disclosed today a decision temporarily suspending operation of the Kem amendment to ban economic assistance to nations trading behind the iron curtain.

The council, of which the President is chairman, granted blanket exceptions for countries now receiving American assistance for a period up to a maximum of 90 days.

The council notified the Senate and House Foreign Affairs, Armed Services and Appropriations Committees of the exceptions.

It said the general suspension was to give opportunity for further examination of the varying situations of individual countries.

Bill Reluctantly Signed

The Kem amendment—sponsored by Sen. Kem (R-Mo)—was made a part of an appropriations bill President Truman reluctantly signed into law. It forbade the granting of further U. S. aid to any nation shipping war-useful goods to countries within the Soviet bloc.

At the time he signed the bill, Mr. Truman said he feared the Kem amendment would hamper traditional trade customs by which the Western democracies got needed items from Eastern Europe. He described the idea of a sweeping ban as unworkable.

The National Security Council includes the President, Vice President Barkley, Secretary of State Acheson and Secretary of Defense Marshall.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short made the announcement shortly after a batch of documents was sent up to the congressional committees.

"Interim General Exception"

"I want to emphasize that the determniation is an interim general exception," Short told reporters.

He said that items which would be covered by the Kem amendment included 1,700 categories of articles and commodities which could not be shipped to the Soviet bloc unless exemptions are certified to Congress by the Security Council.

While making the blanket exception, the council also granted specific exceptions to Norway and Austria.

200 Orphans Led To Safety; Toll May Rise

Most Of Victims Elderly Women

MONTREAL, June 15 (AP)—Flames billowing up an elevator shaft raced through the Hospice Ste. Cunegonde today, killing at least 30 persons in the ancient five-story orphanage and old peoples' home.

About 400 children and old people lived in the house. Nearly all the dead were believed to be aged women occupying upper floors.

Among the dead was Mother Superior Rita Gervais of the Roman Catholic Grey Nuns, who operate the hospice. With her hands clasped as if in prayer, her body was found tonight by firemen still searching the debris hours after the first alarm sounded. Missing and believed dead is Sister Chauvin.

Assistant Police Inspector Herve Guimond fixed the death toll at 30. Fire Director Wilfrid Pare said an all-night search of the smoking building would be necessary before the exact number could be determined.

Flames Shoot Up Shaft

The flames started near the elevator shaft and shot up to the top floors with lightning speed. In ten minutes it had spread through hallways from front to back. The death toll first was set at two—then mounted steadily as firemen were able to work through the wreckage on the upper floors of the stone and wood home, 75 years old.

The old people in the home included about a dozen blind persons, and among the children were many cripples.

Women lived on the upper floors of the building. Aged men lived on the lower floors and most of them are believed to have escaped.

There were about 200 aged residents of the hospice and 200 children, many of them orphans. All the children were reported safe. Twenty-four nuns led them to safety.

Many of the rescued aged were taken to hospitals suffering from shock. Others were housed in a Knights of Columbus hall nearby. Firemen reported they found four bodies about a fourth-floor window and four more near a third-floor window. The body of one woman, believed to have been a cripple, was found in a rocking chair in an upper-floor room.

Woman Guides 12 To Safety

Mrs. Paul-Emile Gauthier, who lives just across the street from the hospice, saw from one of her windows the first puffs of flames.

Rushing across the street and through smoke-filled corridors to the second floor, she guided 12 people to safety. She had to make six trips into the flaming building, taking her charges to safety two at a time down a narrow fire-escape stair.

People leaned out of the floors high above the street, she said, calling: "God help us. God help us."

Rescuers carried several persons from the building on stretchers. They were taken to hospitals and homes nearby.

100-Year-Old Drug Cures Boy's Cancer

PARIS, June 15 (AP) — A seven-year-old boy stood before the French Academy of Surgery today, cured, his doctor said, of a hitherto deadly cancer by an almost forgotten 100-year-old drug with a jawbreaker name.

Prof. Aene Hugenin, medical director of the Villejuif Cancer Institute near Paris, said the boy had been cured of mayignant cancer of the kidney, which had started at the age of four, by use of the drug parahydroxypropiophenone. X-rays showed all signs of the cancerous growth had disappeared, Huguenin said.

Huguenin, who has been doing cancer research for 40 years, did not claim the drug is a general cure for cancer.

MacArthur Says Administration Would Avoid Responsibility Of War In Korea

DALLAS, June 15 (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared tonight that the Truman administration is trying to avoid the responsibility of war in Korea.

The five-star General, speaking in the huge Cotton Bowl, said the issue at stake is how best to win the war.

He said: "Some, with me, would achieve peace through a prompt and decisive victory at a saving of human life, others through appeasement and compromise of moral principle, with less regard for human life."

In effect, MacArthur told a crowd estimated officially at 27,500 that he has more concern for saving lives in Korea than the administration.

He said the American people have shown him that they will not be "misled by propaganda efforts to obscure the main issue."

And he added: "It offers assurance that the people will not be misled by those who, while defending the existing policy vacuum as the best means to preserve peace decry, as the advocacy of a policy which leads to war, the military measures which have been urged to bring the war now in progress to a prompt and victorious end."

With this statement, the General made it clear he believes the people are behind him in his proposals to bomb Manchuria, blockade the Red coast, and use Chinese Nationalist troops in Korea.

This was MacArthur's fourth speech in Texas in three days and his second today. At mid-day, speaking in San Antonio, he charged Secretary Acheson's defense of a 1949 State Department document on Formosa was nothing more than Russian-type propaganda.

In his evening speech, the General said of those who oppose his program:

"How fantastically unrealistic it is for them to refuse to accept the facuality that we are already at war — a bitter, savage and costly war.

"If all other evidence were ignored, our mounting dead would alone stand as mute evidence that it is war in which we are now actually engaged.

"Yet, despite this, they seek to avoid the grave responsibility inherent in the fact of war — seek to divert public thought from the basic issue which war creates — how may victory be achieved with a minimum of human sacrifice."

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Is a "complete rest" the best vacation?

Answer: Not for the majority of people. However inactive your body may be, your mind keeps on working. If it has nothing else to work on, it will tend to go back to the responsibilities that you have tried to leave behind you. Because pleasure tends to relax emotional tension, the ideal vacation is one which gives you the most chance to do things which you enjoy. You may even come back more tired physically than when you went away. But if you have had a good time, you will be "emotionally rested," and that is what matters. A few nights' sleep will cure your body's fatigue.

Can mental illness be measured?

Answer: Not easily or exactly. But two psychiatrists and a psychologist of the Worcester (Mass.) Foundation for Experimental Biology have devised a "Psychiatric Rating Chart" to be used in verifying or refuting the claims made for different types of treatment. Relatively normal attitudes are taken as the "base line" from which one may go to either of two extremes—for example, a mildly aggressive person as he gets worse, becomes "belligerent," "combative," and "destructive," while a mildly self-effacing person tends toward being "self-deprecating," "self-mutilating' and finally, "suicidal."

Is failure a spur to greater efforts?

Answer: At least not immediately, report psychologists Fred Y. Billingslea and Herbert Bloom in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Psychology. Classroom studies showed that students who had failed in examinations tended to take fewer notes afterward than their successful classmates or than they themselves had taken previously. However, in 48 hours they returned to or exceeded their previous efforts. The natural reaction to failure (which involves frustration) is rage, and the difference between unsuccessful and successful people lies in whether they eventually manage to convert their rage into constructive effort.

The French Election

Despite recent electoral changes favoring the French political parties of the Center, those groups—the Socialists, the Popular Republicans, and the misnamed Radical Socialists—are expected to have difficulty in the June 17 national election in producing a majority for their coalition. A canvass by Premier Queuille's own Ministry of the Interior alloted the Communists 120 seats in the new National Assembly, General de Gaulle's Rally of the French People, 130. This would leave 377 of the 627 seats for the Central parties and the Independents. The three middle parties would have to win 314 of those 377 seats for an absolute majority.

The only sure large-scale gainer in the election seems to be General Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People. This de Gaulle party had not yet been organized when the present National Assembly was elected in 1946. It has picked up only a handful of deputies since then. The Gaullists did, however, win 40 per cent of the seats in the upper and less powerful chamber, the Council of the Republic, in November, 1948.

Whatever the specific results on June 17, de Gaulle (although not himself a candidate for office) will emerge as the head of a political organization of great power. His Rally of the French People could supersede the Communists as the strongest single political party. The Gaullist Deputies, by non-cooperation with the Center, might well dispossess the so-called "Third Force" coalition in control of the government since the new constitution was adopted in October, 1946.

The Communists in 1946 captured 182 of the then 619 assembly seats, and have since added several more. But they have the support of probably less than a third of the electorate. The new election law is frankly rigged to work against them, and to some extent against the Gaullists.

The moderate middle group defends the rigging of the election law by explaining that the old system of strict proportional representation tended to—and in fact did—give the Communists more political weight than their popular support warranted. The Center parties maintain that actually they represent the largest segment of French public opinion. The new law allows them in general to combine their votes for the purpose of choosing deputies.

Without widespread use of radio in political campaigns and with television unavailable to most voters, French politicos rely on public speeches, the press, placards and posters. Both the Communists and the Gaullists have proved expert in the technique of the mass rally.

With the contest split four ways — among the Communists, the Third Force, M. Daladier's new "Fourth Force" coalition of moderates and non-Gaullist rightists, and the Gaullist extreme right—new voting records may be set. Some of the 20 per cent of eligibles who traditionally refrain from voting may be lured to the polls. When the new constitution was adopted, 9,297,000 voted Yes and 8,165,000 voted No. But 8,520,000 Frenchmen didn't vote at all.

The outgoing assembly survived the fall of eight cabinets in five years. Despite political instability, that period saw France lift its standard of living to pre-war levels, undertake huge military and defense commitments, and achieve some measure of political rapport with Germany.

Good Nominations

With the nomination of Judge Harold R. Medina to succeed Judge Learned Hand on the United States Court of Appeals and of Thomas F. Murphy to succeed Judge Medina on the federal district bench in New York, President Truman has done more than bestow high judicial honors on two patriotic and extremely capable citizens.

Mr. Truman has apparently tried to atone, in part at least, for some of the silly remarks he made when he was running for President in 1948.

In that campaign the Alger Hiss case was, in Mr. Truman's judgment, a "red herring." Yet now the President is instrumental in promoting one of the men who had most to do with the successful completion of that case.

Judge Medina in the trial of the 11 Communist leaders won the commendation of bar and laity alike for a remarkable display of patience under extreme provocation and for calm insistence that the defendants receive a fair trial. As federal district attorney, Mr. Murphy was a diligent, energetic and altogether able prosecutor.

All but the Communists and fellow-travelers will applaud this action by the President—regardless of whether it was inspired by political considerations.

Billions For Defense

To finance the preparedness program for the fiscal year starting July 1 the armed forces had requested appropriations totaling $104,000,000,000. Fiscal experts reduced this request to $60,000,000,000. Robert Lovett, Deputy Secretary of Defense, says nothing less than the $104,000,000,000 requested will provide security based on military strength.

One of the factors which enters into military appropriations is the inability of anyone in Congress or the executive department to guess how much longer the war in Korea will continue, or how much money will be needed to finance the fighting there.

Despite all the phony peace shananigans, the Korea War will be given preference in military expenditures. This is expected to deplete the $60,000,000,000 budgeted for the next 12 months.

It is planned to reorganize the Army into 18 divisions, plus other units. There is to be a Navy composed of 1,161 ships, with necessary supporting aircraft and other units. There will be two and one-half Marine divisions, and an Air Force consisting of 95 units. What this will cost it is difficult to estimate, but it is doubtful whether the Defense Department could spend more than $60,000,000,000 in the next 12 months if the money were made available.

Oil Boom

An oil boom of gigantic proportions has followed on the heels of announcement that a well capable of 300 barrels a day was brought in several miles from Williston, N. D. No oil had previously been struck in the state, although several dozen dry holes had been drilled.

More than two-thirds of all land in North Dakota has been placed under oil lease, and the boom has spread to eastern Montana, South Dakota and Canada. Bismarck civic boosters are confident North Dakota's capital—although several hundred miles from the discovery—will be another Tulsa.

Oil men are loath to make predictions. All big oil companies have joined in the scramble for leases, just in case. But many of them wouldn't be surprised if no big oil field results from the present activity.

How To Keep Well

The Clew To Happiness

When times are bad and everything goes wrong many persons obtain a lift by reading a book or article that offers a ray of hope. The majority prefer the Bible; others like to read about the lives of happy, successful persons.

Man must have an aim in order to be contented and justify his existence. Neurotic individuals are basically unhappy because they have no goal; living is monotonous and they are in a deep rut. Some have given up in despair and exist rather than live. This is not what our Creator intended and therein lies the crux of their condition.

Happiness is a state of mind that is acquired by only a few. Most of us have the notion that the other fellow must be happy because his "grass is greener" than ours. In this respect, material possessions are uppermost in their mind. They forget that the wealthy man has the associated responsibilities. Furthermore, he may worry about being stripped of his possessions or that the stock market will crash. The poorer man also has his troubles, concerned chiefly with security, his mortgage, job, the education of his children, and similar problems.

However, we must look elsewhere for happiness. Many men and women have laid down rules to follow to reach this goal. L. D. Cavanaugh, for example, recently published a pattern that is worth repeating. He believes that to be happy a clear conscience is needed as well as an appreciation of the fact that each one of us has not only the responsibility but the opportunity to serve God, country, and our fellow man. The Golden Rule should be practiced in all business and social relationships and we must be kind, considerate, and helpful to all, especially to the handicapped who tread life's highways with us. It is important to understand the real meaning of the expression, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Cavanaugh reiterates the concept that material wealth is not a synonym for happiness. Money is a commodity. It will not buy health or happiness; neither will it serve as a passport to heaven. These are simple rules that are applicable to all walks of life. They also are good medicine for the neurotic who is so self-centered he spends most of his time thinking about himself.

The great Sir William Osler also had a formula that worked wonders for him. He felt that most of our worries arose by looking backward or forward. He advised limiting the horizon to a 24-hour circle in what he called life in daylight compartments. The past is gone and he did everything possible, therefore, to erase from his mind the day's events. There should be no concern for tomorrow because that is the future. Osler felt that young men in particular wasted too much energy and became upset because of their anxiety about the future. He used Carlyle's familiar sentence to express his philosophy, "Our main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance but to do what lies clearly at hand." Osler admitted it was difficult to acquire the habit of living for a day but it had to be tried to be successful.

FAT AND THIN

Mrs. R. writes: Will you please straighten out something for me? Why do physicians always say that the thin live longer than the heavy yet slender people always have colds and other minor illnesses.

REPLY

We should give the statisticians of life insurance companies the credit for saying that the thin live longer than the fat. Physicians base their opinions on these statistics. There is no proof that the underweight are more susceptible to colds and other minor ailments except when they are under par or sickly.

RARE TUMOR SITE

K. W. writes: Is it possible to develop a growth on the spine from horseback riding?

REPLY

Growths in this area are not common but you probably refer to a pilondial cyst. These lesions result from irritation of a pre-existing congenital defect. In World War II jeep riding caused many of the cysts to flare up. Ischial bursitis sometimes follows horseback riding.

TB VACCINE

E. G. writes: Are BCG vaccinations necessary and useful for a 14 month old baby whose mother has tuberculosis?

REPLY

This vaccine is valuable in infancy and childhood when the youngster stands a good chance of developing tuberculosis because it exists in the family. In this respect, vaccination should be considered but the family physician who is familiar with the case should make the decision.

SUITABLE JOB

M. W. writes: What occupations are suitable for a person with neurasthenia?

REPLY

Any position; but neurasthenics are more likely to develop symptoms when the work is too hard or carries too much responsibility.

Justice Dept. Lets Arabian-American Oil Scandal Gather Dust; Statute Of Limitations Will Soon Expire; Thompson Capitalizes On Leaving OPS

WASHINGTON — If the Senate ever gets around to a real investigation of the Justice Department — which probably never will happen— it will find tucked in a pigeonhole a sensational report on Arabian oil which for three long years has been gathering dust.

The Senate investigating committee, of which Harry Truman himself once was chairman, sent this report to the Justice Department. It outlines a scandalous cheating of the U. S. Government, and a possible criminal case against the oil companies.

However, the Justice Department has done nothing. Furthermore the Statute of Limitations is rapidly ticking away, and it will soon be too late to act.

The Justice Department's stalling in the Arabian oil case is similar to its stalling regarding the radar grab by the Radio Corporation of America and the stalling regarding the wiretapping of Lt. Joe Shimon of the Washington police, who was paid by Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine to tap the phone of West Coast aviation executive Howard Hughes. In the case of Shimon, the Justice Department did nothing until about 10 days before the Statute of Limitations expired. Then, upon the prodding of newspapers, a grand jury was called — too late to get any conclusive evidence.

Biggest Companies Involved

In the Arabian-American Oil Company scandal, some of the biggest oil companies in the country are involved — originally Texas and Standard of California, with Standard of New Jersey and Socony buying 40 per cent interest in Aramco later.

In 1948 the Senate investigating committee found that Arabian-American Oil had overcharged the Navy millions of dollars by charging it $105 a barrel for oil, after originally promising President Roosevelt to sell oil for 40 cents a barrel. It was on the basis of this cheap oil pledge to FDR that he gave $99,000,000 of lend lease to Saudi Arabia in 1941.

"To induce the grant of aid to the Saudi Arabian government," says the Senate report which has been gathering dust with the Justice Department, "the Arabian-American Oil Company offered to sell to the United States under a proposal to the President dated April 16, 1941, at prices based on fuel oil at 40 cents per barrel.

"When the United States needed oil because of its war demands, notwithstanding these prior proposals, the companies offered the Navy fuel oil at $1.05 a barrel on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. The Navy was forced to buy the oil on these terms.

"The oil companies were under moral, if not a legal obligation to disclose to the naval procurement officers their previous proposals for the sale of oil submitted to the President," continues the Senate report.

"The oil companies exploited the government by exacting high prices for their product despite the assistance granted to Saudi Arabia at the companies' behest to protect and preserve the companies' concessions."

The Senate committee goes on to tell how the oil companies claimed they had doubled their royalties to the Arabian government, and observes: "The U. S. Government clearly was defrauded because the royalty payments were not doubled."

It has been nearly three years since the Senate committee made this categoric charge of "fraud." Nevertheless, the Justice Department has made no move, and the Statute of Limitations will expire in a few more days.

"All-Out" War

Industry spokesmen were discussing government controls at a closed-door meeting with officials of the National Production Authority.

Several of the business leaders argued against "all-out" allocations of materials because, they said, we are not involved in an "all-out" war. As the question was debated back and forth, R. S. Gilliam, a pen manufacturer of Petersburg, Va., remained silent. Pressd for his views, he finally remarked:

"Gentlmen, it may be that we are not already in an all-out war, but nobody can make me believe it.

"You see," he added, "my son has just been killed in Korea."

Ex-Governor Of Georgia

Georgia's ex-Gov. M. E. Thompson is now making a lot of money out of his dramatic exit from the Office of Price Stabilization when he claimed he was given nothing to do and didn't believe in drawing his pay for pure idleness.

Since then Thompson has spent most of his time lecturing and writing about how he quit the government, and is even publishing a monthly newspaper in Metter, Ga. —the "Georgia Democrat"—is devoted largely to attacking the Price Control office.

However, the ex-governor dosen't tell his readers and his lecture audiences the full story.

He has never mentioned, for instance, that he signed a false claim in order to draw the OPS salary which he said he didn't earn. He was on the OPS payroll for 12 weeks, during which time he stated publicly that he didn't do a lick of work. What he didn't tell the public, however, is that he put in a voucher, claiming his full pay of $53.48 per day, plus expenses, totaling $2,887.92 for only 12 weeks work.

In order to collect this pay, Thompson signed the following statement: "I certify that the above account is just and true in all respects. My statement of services performed, correctly sets forth my services on official business."

Yt, when Thompson resigned in a huff, he announced that he had been given "no assignments to do anything." In other words, when he signed a claim for $2,887.92 pay for "services performed," he did not tell the truth.

Thompson also hasn't told his lecture audiences how he used to annoy price boss Mike Di Salle by telephoning him at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. When people get addicted to telephoning other people after 2 a. m. in Washington it's generally considered that the telephoner had had too much to drink —though, of course, habits may be different in Metter, Ga.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A Prelude To The Fourth

It is a little early to write about the Fourth of July, although if plans are to be made for elaborate celebrations, it is none too soon to be thinking about it.

I rarely join committees and organizations, but when Dr. James W. Fifield, Jr., of Los Angeles, asked me to be one of 56 founders of the "Committee to Proclaim Liberty," I joined his company under the Biblical motto "proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants therof." This appears on the Liberty Bell in the sanctuary in Philadelphia.

Dr. Fifield's concept is to have the 175th anniversary of America's freedom under God celebrated not with fire-crackers and accidents on the roads but as a national religious festival. This is the plan:

"The celebration involves: Bells of every church in the nation ringing for 10 minutes at noon on Independence Day; clergymen of all denominations preaching sermons on freedom under God on the Sabbath preceding the 4th of July; and each citizen taking time on the 4th of July to read the declaration of Independence."

That seems to me to be the right idea, for if America means anything to this generation of crisis, it must include in its Philosophy the first hundred or so words of the Declaration of Independence which established us as a nation.

The Constitution and the Bill of Rights provide the mechanics of government. The heart of this people, the spiritual core without which our national existence is meaningless, is in the Declaration of Independence.

It is a curious circumstance in our history that the mature and intellectual men who risked their lives to sign the Declaration of Independence found their justification not in the evils of their king but in the authority of God. It was a theocratic concept of political life. Their words are so clear:

"When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of hapiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. . ."

Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, in his monumental book, "Church and State in the United States," speaks of the founders in this language:

"This faith in progress was enormously stimulated by the fact that the United States was a virgin continent as far as Western civilization was concerned. Here were vast areas which none but the Indian had ever known. The mere size of the continent, its plains, mountains, lakes, and rivers, forests, waterfalls, minerals, fertile lands — what we call today natural resources — all gave a sense of latent power and made the settlers feel that they had an opportunity to do creative work of a new character. This was also strengthened by the inherited conviction of Puritans that New England was a new Canaan and that they had an opportunity to work out here their religious ideals. The citizens of the emerging United States were virtually all Christian men who differed much in matters of church membership and loyalty, and in theological belief, and even, especially in the middle colonies, in national background, but they were one in their realization that God was their father and that they were his children, and that there was in all of them a spark of the divine life which made them capable of great things if they would live worthy of their birthright."

Dr. Fifield has raised a great issue and has provided a wonderful opportunity for the thousands of religious edifices of all faiths to proclaim this day of liberty in so articulate a tone that all will hear — the youth who may have to go to war; the child to whom this day has heretofore meant little more than an outing and a car ride.

There is ample time to prepare for such activities as Dr. Fifield suggests. Perhaps this is a way for dissolving the poisonous apathy toward America which has become the badge of our times.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—There is at once something tragic and discouraging in the case of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer — that a man of his breadth of view, worth-while experience, and rare insight should suddenly be lost to the government's service in these critical days. After three days of testifying, he was warmly applauded by Democrats as well as Republicans. For, with candor and uninhibited simplicity, he gave the Senate committee some valuable truths about American policy in the Far East during the last five years.

Here is no ordinary military man, but a student of global strategy—an experienced planner with a broad sweep of thought on how the military, the economic, the psychological and the spiritual resources of America can be brought to bear in a new assertion of leadership. He was commended by many senators who had disagreed with him on the details of his approach, for instance, to the Korean problem. They thought his broad and comprehensive program to be a step in the right direction.

Attack or Withdraw

Some newspaper headlines may have given the impression that General Wedemeyer wants to withdraw from Korea and call it quits. To say this is to take out of context what he proposed and to select what may have appeared sensational rather than substantial. Plainly, General Wedemeyer thinks it is strategically wrong to concentrate our ground forces in Korea, but, if we stay there, he would have our commanders in Korea given full authority to bomb Manchurian bases and carry the war to the enemy who are attacking us. Either you are in a war or you aren't—this is his clear-cut approach. While he didn't favor use of ground troops originally in Korea, he believes the time has come either to attack the enemy directly, wherever he may be, or to withdraw from Korea and pursue an alternative course.

The alternative which General Wedemeyer favored a year ago, and believes is still practicable, is to impose a naval and economic blockade on China and sever diplomatic relations with Russia and the satellite countries. He would take our ground troops from Korea and carry on a punitive war against Red China by the use of the navy and the air force. Since a modern navy is built primarily around the aircraft carrier, General Wedemeyer is saying, in effect, that attack from the air can in the long run be effective in bringing an enemy to submission. He told the committee he did not believe in committing large bodies of American troops for action in Korea because he thought that there were other areas strategically of greater importance. But he would carry the Korean War to a conclusion through the maximum use of naval and air power.

General Wedemeyer, however, would not place reliance on just one instrument—physical force. He made the most eloquent and persuasive plea that any public man has yet made in favor of psychological warfare.

The General minced no words about blockades, both economic and naval. He refuses to believe that our allies will decline to go along with both courses if the United States is sufficiently vigorous in urging this action upon our allies. He decries the psychology of fear and defeatism and calls for unity among the allies based upon their own self-interests. He doesn't think Russia will go to war just because of what is done in the Far East — he believes that if Russia decides to go to war, it will be because of the entire global situation.

Tried To Avoid Controversy

In many instances the witness was reluctant to become controversial—to accuse, for example, State Department officers in the Far East of disloyalty. He was respectful to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and said he deferred to their judgment, but he also noted that Washington too often fails to give a field commander full information and to give him advice he so desperately needs. He has implicit confidence in General MacArthur's fidelity to his orders and to his superiors, and cannot believe that the former allied commander would ever do anything intentionally to flout those above him. Indeed, General Wedemeyer hints that a thorough examination of the directives and messages exchanged would be necessary to learn just how the misunderstandings occurred. He didn't think it was wrong of General MacArthur to write Representative Martin—he said that military men were doing it all the time—but he thought the Congressman should not have made the letter public without first asking General MacArthur.

And so went the testimony — forthright, fearless, clear and comprehensive, even if at times, on cross-examination, there seemed to be points of contradiction or inconsistency.

What a pity that a man like General Wedemeyer is lost to his government—for he asked for his retirement recently rather than make a fuss over the mistaken views of the Department of State in making Far Eastern policy. Here is a man whose counsel should even now be sought by the authors of military as well or foreign policy, for he has a penetrating intellect and a rugged honesty too valuable to be put aside at such an early age. He is truly a casualty of the intolerance of Washington officialdom toward dissenting opinion.

A Common Factor

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the testimony Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer gave before the combined Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees last Tuesday, he introduced a suggestion, new in these hearings. He, like all the other witnesses, had dealt at length with the Truman Administration's policy about China in the past. Now, turning to the present, to what should be done now, Gen. Wedemeyer made a suggestion. Two sentences which dominated the headlines the following day were:

"It seems to me that if we permit the Soviet to continue to incite these disorders that jeopardize our security, I think the time is coming where we will just have to draw a line and say, 'no more, this is it.'" And it ought to be done again in the United Nations . . ."

But this idea, in effect an ultimatum to Russia, while very important in its present setting, is not new in the long range. It has been proposed before, conspicuously and forcefully, by Harold E. Stassen, President of the University of Pennsylvania. Because Mr. Stassen's statement was made in a formal address to the country, it was more explicit than Gen. Wedemeyer could readily be in answering questions at a Senate hearing.

Mr. Stassen's address was made last August, some six weeks after the Communist aggression in Korea, and he used Korea as an illustration and text. He said that Russia has embarked upon a plan of "continuous emboiling of . . . the United States in minor wars at distant difficult points to tire and weaken us and bleed us white."

Stassen Proposed Alternative

This view, that Korea was to be merely the first of a series, was held by persons well equipped for judgment. Speculation at the time suggested the places where new aggressions might be expected; they included Iran, Formosa, Indo-China, Yugoslavia and other places. This, Mr. Stassen said, must not go on: "We must not permit Uncle Sam to be chopped down finger by finger, arm by arm, by preliminary fights . . . our armed strength will be dissipated and spread out" in widely separated parts of the world.

Mr. Stassen proposed an alternative course for us. Instead of letting Russia go on involving us in local wars at points chosen by it, and timed to compose a program deadly to us, we should take the initiative. But our initiative, Mr. Stassen carefully emphasized, ought not to take the form of a "preventive war" by us. He would have us, with the United Nations, serve warning on the Kremlin that it will be regarded as responsible. We should tell the Kremlin that "if the Communist leaders do in fact start World War III by aggression through their satellites and puppets, we and our associates in the United Nations intend to finish it, in due time, against the Kremlin itself."

Here is a somber comparison. What Mr. Stassen suggested nearly 11 months ago is substantially equivalent to what Gen. Wedemeyer suggests now. There is no evidence that the Russian Communist heads have changed their plan. The most threatening development in the interim, war upon us by Communist China, far from being any change in the Communist plan, is a confirmation of it. There is no evidence that any of the new aggressions that were apprehended a year ago are made less likely now by any change of plan on the part of the Russians.

Still Frustrating Peace

In the present suggestion by Gen. Wedemeyer and the one nearly 11 months ago by Mr. Stassen is a common factor that mainly inspires both, it is that Russia is responsible and that we should warn Russia that we will hold it responsible. The same spirit was in a suggestion of a different kind made more than a year ago. This was that Russia has been responsible for the impossibility of making any progress toward world peace, either through the United Nations or otherwise.

Looking upon Russia as responsible, the suggestion was alternative—either that we should expel Russia from the United Nations or that we should organize a new United Nations composed of the free countries of the world, with Russia out. That suggestion has not been acted upon and is now little heard of. Russia is still in the United Nations and continues to frustrate peace.

About Korea and China, present suggestions from authoritative sources—the Administration, Gen. MacArthur, Gen. Wedemeyer—differ. None approaches universal acceptance. Such a condition can hardly continue indefinitely. A tenable assumption would be that it must end either through events or leadership widely accepted.

The French Election

Despite recent electoral changes favoring the French political parties of the Center, those groups—the Socialists, the Popular Republicans, and the misnamed Radical Socialists—are expected to have difficulty in the June 17 national election in producing a majority for their coalition. A canvass by Premier Queuille's own Ministry of the Interior alloted the Communists 120 seats in the new National Assembly, General de Gaulle's Rally of the French People, 130. This would leave 377 of the 627 seats for the Central parties and the Independents. The three middle parties would have to win 314 of those 377 seats for an absolute majority.

The only sure large-scale gainer in the election seems to be General Charles de Gaulle's Rally of the French People. This de Gaulle party had not yet been organized when the present National Assembly was elected in 1946. It has picked up only a handful of deputies since then. The Gaullists did, however, win 40 per cent of the seats in the upper and less powerful chamber, the Council of the Republic, in November, 1948.

Whatever the specific results on June 17, de Gaulle (although not himself a candidate for office) will emerge as the head of a political organization of great power. His Rally of the French People could supersede the Communists as the strongest single political party. The Gaullist Deputies, by non-cooperation with the Center, might well dispossess the so-called "Third Force" coalition in control of the government since the new constitution was adopted in October, 1946.

The Communists in 1946 captured 182 of the then 619 assembly seats, and have since added several more. But they have the support of probably less than a third of the electorate. The new election law is frankly rigged to work against them, and to some extent against the Gaullists.

The moderate middle group defends the rigging of the election law by explaining that the old system of strict proportional representation tended to—and in fact did—give the Communists more political weight than their popular support warranted. The Center parties maintain that actually they represent the largest segment of French public opinion. The new law allows them in general to combine their votes for the purpose of choosing deputies.

Without widespread use of radio in political campaigns and with television unavailable to most voters, French politicos rely on public speeches, the press, placards and posters. Both the Communists and the Gaullists have proved expert in the technique of the mass rally.

With the contest split four ways—among the Communists, the Third Force, M. Daladier's new "Fourth Force" coalition of moderates and non-Gaullist rightists, and the Gaullist extreme right—new voting records may be set. Some of the 20 per cent of eligibles who traditionally refrain from voting may be lured to the polls. When the new constitution was adopted, 9,297,000 voted Yes and 8,165,000 voted No. But 8,520,000 Frenchmen didn't vote at all.

The outgoing assembly survived the fall of eight cabinets in five years. Despite political instability, that period saw France lift its standard of living to pre-war levels, undertake huge military and defense commitments, and achieve some measure of political rapport with Germany.

Good Nominations

With the nomination of Judge Harold R. Medina to succeed Judge Learned Hand on the United States Court of Appeals and of Thomas F. Murphy to succeed Judge Medina on the federal district bench in New York, President Truman has done more than bestow high judicial honors on two patriotic and extremely capable citizens.

Mr. Truman has apparently tried to atone, in part at least, for some of the silly remarks he made when he was running for President in 1948.

In that campaign the Alger Hiss case was, in Mr. Truman's judgment, a "red herring." Yet now the President is instrumental in promoting one of the men who had most to do with the successful completion of that case.

Judge Medina in the trial of the 11 Communist leaders won the commendation of bar and laity alike for a remarkable display of patience under extreme provocation and for calm insistence that the defendants receive a fair trial. As federal district attorney, Mr. Murphy was a diligent, energetic and altogether able prosecutor.

All but the Communists and fellow-travelers will applaud this action by the President—regardless of whether it was inspired by political considerations.

Billions For Defense

To finance the preparedness program for the fiscal year starting July 1 the armed forces had requested appropriations totaling $104,000,000,000. Fiscal experts reduced this request to $60,000,000,000. Robert Lovett, Deputy Secretary of Defense, says nothing less than the $104,000,000,000 requested will provide security based on military strength.

One of the factors which enters into military appropriations is the inability of anyone in Congress or the executive department to guess how much longer the war in Korea will continue, or how much money will be needed to finance the fighting there.

Despite all the phony peace shananigans, the Korea War will be given preference in military expenditures. This is expected to deplete the $60,000,000,000 budgeted for the next 12 months.

It is planned to reorganize the Army into 18 divisions, plus other units. There is to be a Navy composed of 1,161 ships, with necessary supporting aircraft and other units. There will be two and one-half Marine divisions, and an Air Force consisting of 95 units. What this will cost it is difficult to estimate, but it is doubtful whether the Defense Department could spend more than $60,000,000,000 in the next 12 months if the money were made available.

Oil Boom

An oil boom of gigantic proportions has followed on the heels of announcement that a well capable of 300 barrels a day was brought in several miles from Williston, N. D. No oil had previously been struck in the state, although several dozen dry holes had been drilled.

More than two-thirds of all land in North Dakota has been placed under oil lease, and the boom has spread to eastern Montana, South Dakota and Canada. Bismarck civic boosters are confident North Dakota's capital—although several hundred miles from the discovery—will be another Tulsa.

Oil men are loath to make predictions. All big oil companies have joined in the scramble for leases, just in case. But many of them wouldn't be surprised if no big oil field results from the present activity.

How To Keep Well

The Clew To Happiness

When times are bad and everything goes wrong many persons obtain a lift by reading a book or article that offers a ray of hope. The majority prefer the Bible; others like to read about the lives of happy, successful persons.

Man must have an aim in order to be contented and justify his existence. Neurotic individuals are basically unhappy because they have no goal; living is monotonous and they are in a deep rut. Some have given up in despair and exist rather than live. This is not what our Creator intended and therein lies the crux of their condition.

Happiness is a state of mind that is acquired by only a few. Most of us have the notion that the other fellow must be happy because his "grass is greener" than ours. In this respect, material possessions are uppermost in their mind. They forget that the wealthy man has the associated responsibilities. Furthermore, he may worry about being stripped of his possessions or that the stock market will crash. The poorer man also has his troubles, concerned chiefly with security, his mortgage, job, the education of his children, and similar problems.

However, we must look elsewhere for happiness. Many men and women have laid down rules to follow to reach this goal. L. D. Cavanaugh, for example, recently published a pattern that is worth repeating. He believes that to be happy a clear conscience is needed as well as an appreciation of the fact that each one of us has not only the responsibility but the opportunity to serve God, country, and our fellow man. The Golden Rule should be practiced in all business and social relationships and we must be kind, considerate, and helpful to all, especially to the handicapped who tread life's highways with us. It is important to understand the real meaning of the expression, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Cavanaugh reiterates the concept that material wealth is not a synonym for happiness. Money is a commodity. It will not buy health or happiness; neither will it serve as a passport to heaven. These are simple rules that are applicable to all walks of life. They also are good medicine for the neurotic who is so self-centered he spends most of his time thinking about himself.

The great Sir William Osler also had a formula that worked wonders for him. He felt that most of our worries arose by looking backward or forward. He advised limiting the horizon to a 24-hour circle in what he called life in daylight compartments. The past is gone and he did everything possible, therefore, to erase from his mind the day's events. There should be no concern for tomorrow because that is the future. Osler felt that young men in particular wasted too much energy and became upset because of their anxiety about the future. He used Carlyle's familiar sentence to express his philosophy, "Our main business is not to see what lies dimly at a distance but to do what lies clearly at hand." Osler admitted it was difficult to acquire the habit of living for a day but it had to be tried to be successful.

FAT AND THIN

Mrs. R. writes: Will you please straighten out something for me? Why do physicians always say that the thin live longer than the heavy yet slender people always have colds and other minor illnesses.

REPLY

We should give the statisticians of life insurance companies the credit for saying that the thin live longer than the fat. Physicians base their opinions on these statistics. There is no proof that the underweight are more susceptible to colds and other minor ailments except when they are under par or sickly.

RARE TUMOR SITE

K. W. writes: Is it possible to develop a growth on the spine from horseback riding?

REPLY

Growths in this area are not common but you probably refer to a pilondial cyst. These lesions result from irritation of a pre-existing congenital defect. In World War II jeep riding caused many of the cysts to flare up. Ischial bursitis sometimes follows horseback riding.

TB VACCINE

E. G. writes: Are BCG vaccinations necessary and useful for a 14 month old baby whose mother has tuberculosis?

REPLY

This vaccine is valuable in infancy and childhood when the youngster stands a good chance of developing tuberculosis because it exists in the family. In this respect, vaccination should be considered but the family physician who is familiar with the case should make the decision.

SUITABLE JOB

M. W. writes: What occupations are suitable for a person with neurasthenia?

REPLY

Any position; but neurasthenics are more likely to develop symptoms when the work is too hard or carries too much responsibility.

Justice Dept. Lets Arabian-American Oil Scandal Gather Dust; Statute Of Limitations Will Soon Expire; Thompson Capitalizes On Leaving OPS

WASHINGTON — If the Senate ever gets around to a real investigation of the Justice Department — which probably never will happen— it will find tucked in a pigeonhole a sensational report on Arabian oil which for three long years has been gathering dust.

The Senate investigating committee, of which Harry Truman himself once was chairman, sent this report to the Justice Department. It outlines a scandalous cheating of the U. S. Government, and a possible criminal case against the oil companies.

However, the Justice Department has done nothing. Furthermore the Statute of Limitations is rapidly ticking away, and it will soon be too late to act.

The Justice Department's stalling in the Arabian oil case is similar to its stalling regarding the radar grab by the Radio Corporation of America and the stalling regarding the wiretapping of Lt. Joe Shimon of the Washington police, who was paid by Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine to tap the phone of West Coast aviation executive Howard Hughes. In the case of Shimon, the Justice Department did nothing until about 10 days before the Statute of Limitations expired. Then, upon the prodding of newspapers, a grand jury was called — too late to get any conclusive evidence.

Biggest Companies Involved

In the Arabian-American Oil Company scandal, some of the biggest oil companies in the country are involved — originally Texas and Standard of California, with Standard of New Jersey and Socony buying 40 per cent interest in Aramco later.

In 1948 the Senate investigating committee found that Arabian-American Oil had overcharged the Navy millions of dollars by charging it $105 a barrel for oil, after originally promising President Roosevelt to sell oil for 40 cents a barrel. It was on the basis of this cheap oil pledge to FDR that he gave $99,000,000 of lend lease to Saudi Arabia in 1941.

"To induce the grant of aid to the Saudi Arabian government," says the Senate report which has been gathering dust with the Justice Department, "the Arabian-American Oil Company offered to sell to the United States under a proposal to the President dated April 16, 1941, at prices based on fuel oil at 40 cents per barrel.

"When the United States needed oil because of its war demands, notwithstanding these prior proposals, the companies offered the Navy fuel oil at $1.05 a barrel on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. The Navy was forced to buy the oil on these terms.

"The oil companies were under moral, if not a legal obligation to disclose to the naval procurement officers their previous proposals for the sale of oil submitted to the President," continues the Senate report.

"The oil companies exploited the government by exacting high prices for their product despite the assistance granted to Saudi Arabia at the companies' behest to protect and preserve the companies' concessions."

The Senate committee goes on to tell how the oil companies claimed they had doubled their royalties to the Arabian government, and observes: "The U. S. Government clearly was defrauded because the royalty payments were not doubled."

It has been nearly three years since the Senate committee made this categoric charge of "ffraud." Nevertheless, the Justice Department has made no move, and the Statute of Limitations will expire in a few more days.

"All-Out" War

Industry spokesmen were discussing government controls at a closed-door meeting with officials of the National Production Authority.

Several of the business leaders argued against "all-out" allocations of materials because, they said, we are not involved in an "all-out" war. As the question was debated back and forth, R. S. Gilliam, a pen manufacturer of Petersburg, Va., remained silent. Pressd for his views, he finally remarked:

"Gentlmen, it may be that we are not already in an all-out war, but nobody can make me believe it.

"You see," he added, "my son has just been killed in Korea."

Ex-Governor Of Georgia

Georgia's ex-Gov. M. E. Thompson is now making a lot of money out of his dramatic exit from the Office of Price Stabilization when he claimed he was given nothing to do and didn't believe in drawing his pay for pure idleness.

Since then Thompson has spent most of his time lecturing and writing about how he quit the government, and is even publishing a monthly newspaper in Metter, Ga. —the "Georgia Democrat"—is devoted largely to attacking the Price Control office.

However, the ex-governor dosen't tell his readers and his lecture audiences the full story.

He has never mentioned, for instance, that he signed a false claim in order to draw the OPS salary which he said he didn't earn. He was on the OPS payroll for 12 weeks, during which time he stated publicly that he didn't do a lick of work. What he didn't tell the public, however, is that he put in a voucher, claiming his full pay of $53.48 per day, plus expenses, totaling $2,887.92 for only 12 weeks work.

In order to collect this pay, Thompson signed the following statement: "I certify that the above account is just and true in all respects. My statement of services performed, correctly sets forth my services on official business."

Yt, when Thompson resigned in a huff, he announced that he had been given "no assignments to do anything." In other words, when he signed a claim for $2,887.92 pay for "services performed," he did not tell the truth.

Thompson also hasn't told his lecture audiences how he used to annoy price boss Mike Di Salle by telephoning him at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. When people get addicted to telephoning other people after 2 a. m. in Washington it's generally considered that the telephoner had had too much to drink —though, of course, habits may be different in Metter, Ga.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A Prelude To The Fourth

It is a little early to write about the Fourth of July, although if plans are to be made for elaborate celebrations, it is none too soon to be thinking about it.

I rarely join committees and organizations, but when Dr. James W. Fifield, Jr., of Los Angeles, asked me to be one of 56 founders of the "Committee to Proclaim Liberty," I joined his company under the Biblical motto "proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants therof." This appears on the Liberty Bell in the sanctuary in Philadelphia.

Dr. Fifield's concept is to have the 175th anniversary of America's freedom under God celebrated not with fire-crackers and accidents on the roads but as a national religious festival. This is the plan:

"The celebration involves: Bells of every church in the nation ringing for 10 minutes at noon on Independence Day; clergymen of all denominations preaching sermons on freedom under God on the Sabbath preceding the 4th of July; and each citizen taking time on the 4th of July to read the declaration of Independence."

That seems to me to be the right idea, for if America means anything to this generation of crisis, it must include in its Philosophy the first hundred or so words of the Declaration of Independence which established us as a nation.

The Constitution and the Bill of Rights provide the mechanics of government. The heart of this people, the spiritual core without which our national existence is meaningless, is in the Declaration of Independence.

It is a curious circumstance in our history that the mature and intellectual men who risked their lives to sign the Declaration of Independence found their justification not in the evils of their king but in the authority of God. It was a theocratic concept of political life. Their words are so clear:

"When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of hapiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. . ."

Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, in his monumental book, "Church and State in the United States," speaks of the founders in this language:

"This faith in progress was enormously stimulated by the fact that the United States was a virgin continent as far as Western civilization was concerned. Here were vast areas which none but the Indian had ever known. The mere size of the continent, its plains, mountains, lakes, and rivers, forests, waterfalls, minerals, fertile lands — what we call today natural resources — all gave a sense of latent power and made the settlers feel that they had an opportunity to do creative work of a new character. This was also strengthened by the inherited conviction of Puritans that New England was a new Canaan and that they had an opportunity to work out here their religious ideals. The citizens of the emerging United States were virtually all Christian men who differed much in matters of church membership and loyalty, and in theological belief, and even, especially in the middle colonies, in national background, but they were one in their realization that God was their father and that they were his children, and that there was in all of them a spark of the divine life which made them capable of great things if they would live worthy of their birthright."

Dr. Fifield has raised a great issue and has provided a wonderful opportunity for the thousands of religious edifices of all faiths to proclaim this day of liberty in so articulate a tone that all will hear — the youth who may have to go to war; the child to whom this day has heretofore meant little more than an outing and a car ride.

There is ample time to prepare for such activities as Dr. Fifield suggests. Perhaps this is a way for dissolving the poisonous apathy toward America which has become the badge of our times.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—There is at once something tragic and discouraging in the case of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer — that a man of his breadth of view, worth-while experience, and rare insight should suddenly be lost to the government's service in these critical days. After three days of testifying, he was warmly applauded by Democrats as well as Republicans. For, with candor and uninhibited simplicity, he gave the Senate committee some valuable truths about American policy in the Far East during the last five years.

Here is no ordinary military man, but a student of global strategy—an experienced planner with a broad sweep of thought on how the military, the economic, the psychological and the spiritual resources of America can be brought to bear in a new assertion of leadership. He was commended by many senators who had disagreed with him on the details of his approach, for instance, to the Korean problem. They thought his broad and comprehensive program to be a step in the right direction.

Attack or Withdraw

Some newspaper headlines may have given the impression that General Wedemeyer wants to withdraw from Korea and call it quits. To say this is to take out of context what he proposed and to select what may have appeared sensational rather than substantial. Plainly, General Wedemeyer thinks it is strategically wrong to concentrate our ground forces in Korea, but, if we stay there, he would have our commanders in Korea given full authority to bomb Manchurian bases and carry the war to the enemy who are attacking us. Either you are in a war or you aren't—this is his clear-cut approach. While he didn't favor use of ground troops originally in Korea, he believes the time has come either to attack the enemy directly, wherever he may be, or to withdraw from Korea and pursue an alternative course.

The alternative which General Wedemeyer favored a year ago, and believes is still practicable, is to impose a naval and economic blockade on China and sever diplomatic relations with Russia and the satellite countries. He would take our ground troops from Korea and carry on a punitive war against Red China by the use of the navy and the air force. Since a modern navy is built primarily around the aircraft carrier, General Wedemeyer is saying, in effect, that attack from the air can in the long run be effective in bringing an enemy to submission. He told the committee he did not believe in committing large bodies of American troops for action in Korea because he thought that there were other areas strategically of greater importance. But he would carry the Korean War to a conclusion through the maximum use of naval and air power.

General Wedemeyer, however, would not place reliance on just one instrument—physical force. He made the most eloquent and persuasive plea that any public man has yet made in favor of psychological warfare.

The General minced no words about blockades, both economic and naval. He refuses to believe that our allies will decline to go along with both courses if the United States is sufficiently vigorous in urging this action upon our allies. He decries the psychology of fear and defeatism and calls for unity among the allies based upon their own self-interests. He doesn't think Russia will go to war just because of what is done in the Far East — he believes that if Russia decides to go to war, it will be because of the entire global situation.

Tried To Avoid Controversy

In many instances the witness was reluctant to become controversial—to accuse, for example, State Department officers in the Far East of disloyalty. He was respectful to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and said he deferred to their judgment, but he also noted that Washington too often fails to give a field commander full information and to give him advice he so desperately needs. He has implicit confidence in General MacArthur's fidelity to his orders and to his superiors, and cannot believe that the former allied commander would ever do anything intentionally to flout those above him. Indeed, General Wedemeyer hints that a thorough examination of the directives and messages exchanged would be necessary to learn just how the misunderstandings occurred. He didn't think it was wrong of General MacArthur to write Representative Martin—he said that military men were doing it all the time—but he thought the Congressman should not have made the letter public without first asking General MacArthur.

And so went the testimony — forthright, fearless, clear and comprehensive, even if at times, on cross-examination, there seemed to be points of contradiction or inconsistency.

What a pity that a man like General Wedemeyer is lost to his government—for he asked for his retirement recently rather than make a fuss over the mistaken views of the Department of State in making Far Eastern policy. Here is a man whose counsel should even now be sought by the authors of military as well or foreign policy, for he has a penetrating intellect and a rugged honesty too valuable to be put aside at such an early age. He is truly a casualty of the intolerance of Washington officialdom toward dissenting opinion.

A Common Factor

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the testimony Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer gave before the combined Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees last Tuesday, he introduced a suggestion, new in these hearings. He, like all the other witnesses, had dealt at length with the Truman Administration's policy about China in the past. Now, turning to the present, to what should be done now, Gen. Wedemeyer made a suggestion. Two sentences which dominated the headlines the following day were:

"It seems to me that if we permit the Soviet to continue to incite these disorders that jeopardize our security, I think the time is coming where we will just have to draw a line and say, 'no more, this is it.' And it ought to be done again in the United Nations . . ."

But this idea, in effect an ultimatum to Russia, while very important in its present setting, is not new in the long range. It has been proposed before, conspicuously and forcefully, by Harold E. Stassen, President of the University of Pennsylvania. Because Mr. Stassen's statement was made in a formal address to the country, it was more explicit than Gen. Wedemeyer could readily be in answering questions at a Senate hearing.

Mr. Stassen's address was made last August, some six weeks after the Communist aggression in Korea, and he used Korea as an illustration and text. He said that Russia has embarked upon a plan of "continuous embroiling of . . . the United States in minor wars at distant difficult points to tire and weaken us and bleed us white."

Stassen Proposed Alternative

This view, that Korea was to be merely the first of a series, was held by persons well equipped for judgment. Speculation at the time suggested the places where new aggressions might be expected; they included Iran, Formosa, Indo-China, Yugoslavia and other places. This, Mr. Stassen said, must not go on: "We must not permit Uncle Sam to be chopped down finger by finger, arm by arm, by preliminary fights . . . our armed strength will be dissipated and spread out" in widely separated parts of the world.

Mr. Stassen proposed an alternative course for us. Instead of letting Russia go on involving us in local wars at points chosen by it, and timed to compose a program deadly to us, we should take the initiative. But our initiative, Mr. Stassen carefully emphasized, ought not to take the form of a "preventive war" by us. He would have us, with the United Nations, serve warning on the Kremlin that it will be regarded as responsible. We should tell the Kremlin that "if the Communist leaders do in fact start World War III by aggression through their satellites and puppets, we and our associates in the United Nations intend to finish it, in due time, against the Kremlin itself."

Here is a somber comparison. What Mr. Stassen suggested nearly 11 months ago is substantially equivalent to what Gen. Wedemeyer suggests now. There is no evidence that the Russian Communist heads have changed their plan. The most threatening development in the interim, war upon us by Communist China, far from being any change in the Communist plan, is a confirmation of it. There is no evidence that any of the new aggressions that were apprehended a year ago are made less likely now by any change of plan on the part of the Russians.

Still Frustrating Peace

In the present suggestion by Gen. Wedemeyer and the one nearly 11 months ago by Mr. Stassen is a common factor that mainly inspires both, it is that Russia is responsible and that we should warn Russia that we will hold it responsible. The same spirit was in a suggestion of a different kind made more than a year ago. This was that Russia has been responsible for the impossibility of making any progress toward world peace, either through the United Nations or otherwise.

Looking upon Russia as responsible, the suggestion was alternative—either that we should expel Russia from the United Nations or that we should organize a new United Nations composed of the free countries of the world, with Russia out. That suggestion has not been acted upon and is now little heard of. Russia is still in the United Nations and continues to frustrate peace.

About Korea and China, present suggestions from authoritative sources—the Administration, Gen. MacArthur, Gen. Wedemeyer—differ. None approaches universal acceptance. Such a condition can hardly continue indefinitely. A tenable assumption would be that it must end either through events or leadership widely accepted.

Hitler's Car To Be Exhibited June 20 To 22

The jet black limousine of Adolph Hitler with the wax figures of Hitler, Goering and the driver sitting inside, will be exhibited at 26 North Centre Street Wednesday to Friday, June 20, 21 and 22.

The 1943 model Mercedes will be exhibited by the Military Order of the Purple Heart to emphasize the lesson that dictators do not feel safe even from their own people.

The car was captured on May 7, 1945, by Free French Forces under the command of General Leclere. Bullet marks on the front left window pane, fired just before the automobile was captured are still in evidence.

Hitler's private car weighs 9,500 pounds, is 19 feet, five inches long, six feet, three inches high and six feet, ten inches wide. The speed of the car is 102 miles per hour, and gas consumption is estimated at three miles per gallon. The gasoline tank holds 70 gallons. A supercharged motor develops 400 horse power and has eight straight clyinders and two carburators. The window glass is one and a half inches thick, bulletproof; and the car body is made of steel plate half an inch thick. Specially built inner tubes were also used in the limousine. Two rear lights are evident and were used to detect pursuit. Another red spot light inside the car was used to indicate the super priority of Hitler.

police authorities were not protecting them from violence by pickets. This was after a picket was killed by a truck leaving a tipple near Lonaconing.

The United Mine Workers at the time condemned some companies for subleasing their shafts to miners and then buying the coal from them. This was after two of the largest union mines closed for what they announced was lack of a market.

Governor McKeldin vetoed last month a bill he said would discriminate against miners in the Crellin area. The bill would have required the state to buy only coal mined in Maryland.

Some mines employing Crellin residents actually have their entrances across the border in West Virginia.

Spokesmen for the United Mine Workers have attacked the Governor for his veto.

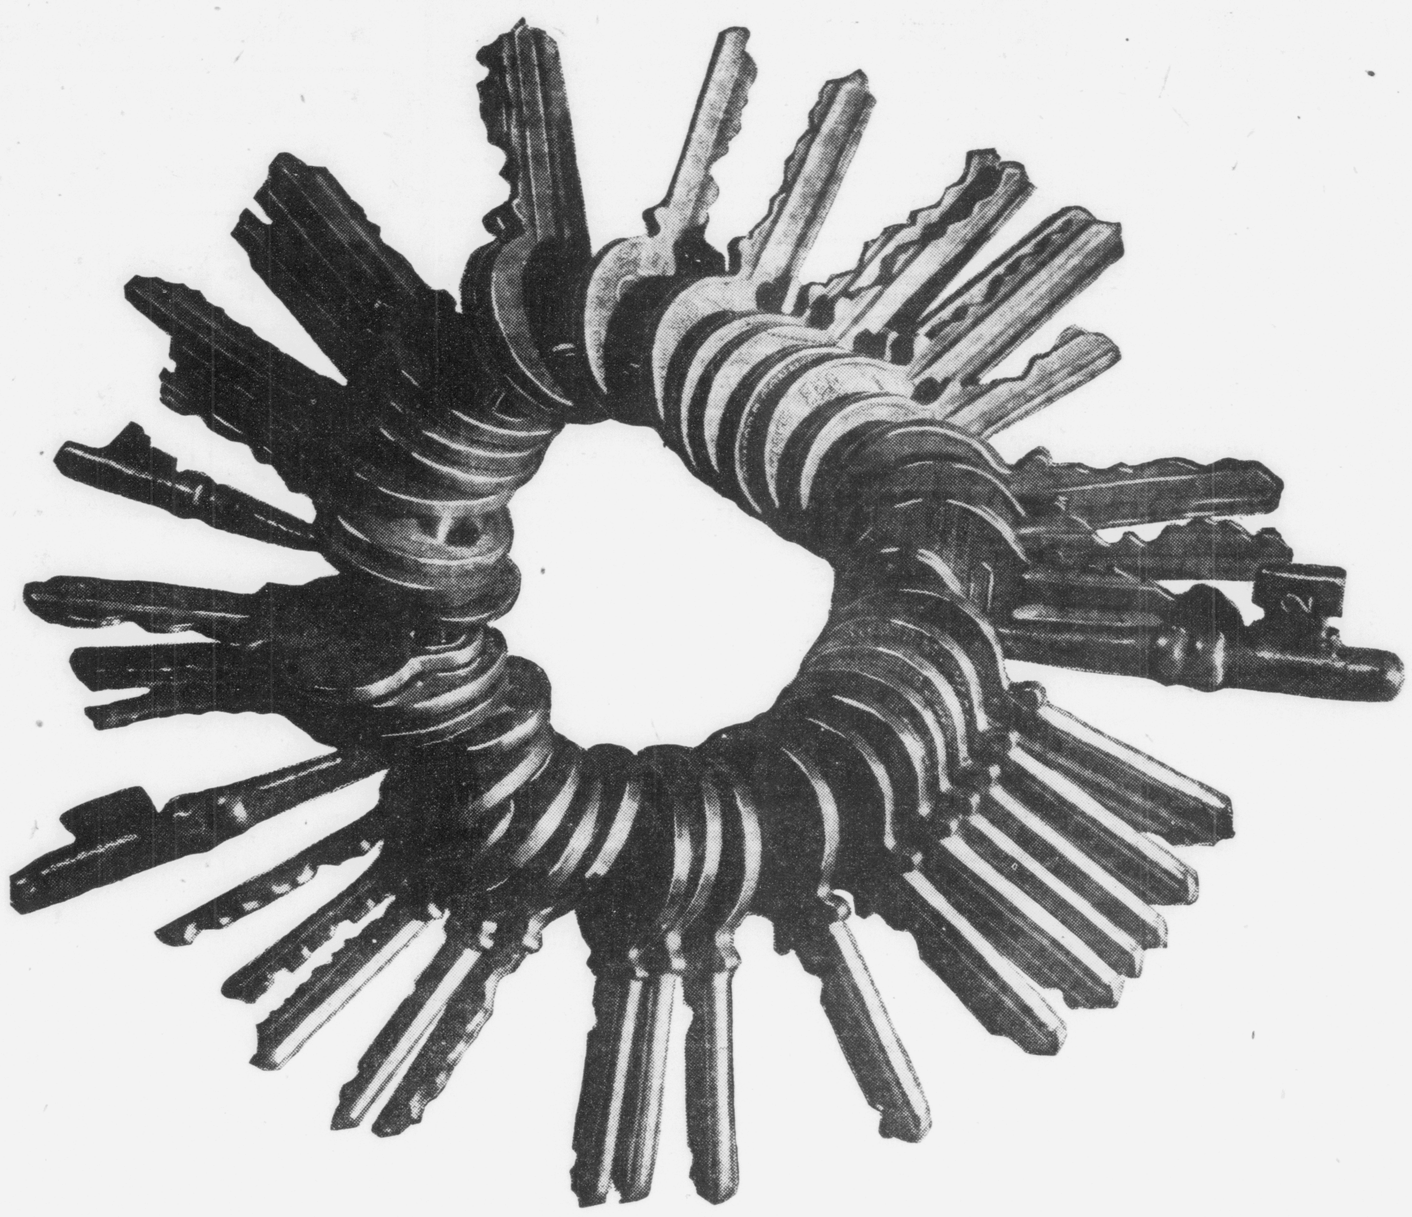
Bring Your Problems To Church This Sunday...Millions Leave Them There!

TO INSURE PUBLICATION in Saturday's paper, all church notices must be in The Cumberland News office by 11 o'clock each Thursday night.



KEYS OPEN DOORS

And by doors we enter!

But not all doors are worth opening, nor are all keys worth having.

A man's interests and aims are his keys!

A man's pursuits, his habits, his achievements are the doors he has opened. Across their threshold his life moves, bringing good or evil, happiness or sorrow, to himself and those around him.

Wise men, centuries ago, discovered that most of the keys to a richer, fuller, and more beautiful life could be found in the worship and faith of the Church.

Worship and faith are master keys . . . to the human power we call courage . . . and to the Divine Power we call GOD.

KEYS OPEN DOORS

And by doors we enter!

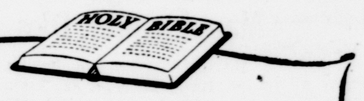
But not all doors are worth opening, nor are all keys worth having.

A man's interests and aims are his keys!

A man's pursuits, his habits, his achievements are the doors he has opened. Across their threshold his life moves, bringing good or evil, happiness or sorrow, to himself and those around him.

Wise men, centuries ago, discovered that most of the keys to a richer, fuller, and more beautiful life could be found in the worship and faith of the Church.

Worship and faith are master keys . . . to the human power we call courage . . . and to the Divine Power we call GOD.



THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Traffic Ticket 'Fixing' Assailed

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—Safety experts today denounced the fixing of traffic tickets as an "unwholesome and un-American practice."

The President's Highway Safety Conference, ending a three-day meeting, adopted unanimously a report which said:

'Conscientious police and court officials abhor the evils of ticket fixing and should steadily work to eradicate the unwholesome and un-American practice."

The conference also declared:

"The killing and maiming of human beings by motor vehicles has reached a point where it is a national emergency."

It suggested one remedy: Stiffer jail sentences for violators.

One traffic judge, Roy Degrief of Seattle, contributed a footnote to this theory.

"I put a boy in jail 18 days for speeding," he said. "When he got out, a traffic policeman picked him up on his way home doing 80 miles an hour on his motorcycle. Jail sentences aren't always the answer."

'Mom' Writes General, GI Brothers Reunited

DAVENPORT, Ia., June 15 (AP) — A letter from "mom" did it. So Cpl. William R. Scannell and Pfc. Robert F. Scannell had a few days together in Korea before the corporal was rotated home.

They are sons of Mrs. F. G. Scannell of this city. William was coming home after 11 months with the First Cavalry Division, lately at the 38th parallel. Robert was stationed at Pusan, Korea.

Mrs. Scannell thought it would be nice if they could get together while William was still in Korea.

She wrote "General Van Fleet, somewhere in Korea," and sent the letter in care of the postmaster, San Francisco.

A special delivery arrived last Sunday from Brig. Gen. Paul F. Yount, stating:

"On behalf of the army commander (that's Gen. James Van Fleet), I am happy to inform you that Cpl. Scannell has arrived in this command and will spend the next few days with his brother." The letter was dated June 4.

Cabinetmaker Buried In Casket He Built

EAST AMANA, Ia., June 15 (AP)—Harry Shaefer, 53, a cabinet worker, was assigned by the company he works for to make a casket.

He finished the casket Wednesday afternoon and went home. That night he suffered a heart attack and died.

Funeral services were held today. He was buried in the casket he built in the last days of his life.

Cruiser Back From War

LONG BEACH, Calif., June 15 (AP)—The light cruiser Manchester, back from 10 months of war duty in Korean waters, was greeted today by more than 1,200 wives and relatives.

A German musician has the time record for playing the piano. He played steadily for 123 hours.

RESCUER RESCUED — Frozen with fear, Frank Avezzano, 23, sits at the top of a 175-foot tower in "Rockaway Playland" amusement park at New York awaiting his rescuers. Avezzano, an employe of the park, had climbed the tower yesterday in pursuit of "Kathy," a monkey which had escaped from its cage. Once at the top of the tower with the monkey, Avezzano was paralyzed by the dizzying height. He was rescued by a fire department crew.

Paralytic Wins His Degree Via Phone

MADISON, Wis., June 15 (AP)—Frank Huettner, Jr., today became the first man to earn a University of Wisconsin law degree entirely by telephone.

He was graduated with honors, too, even though he never has entered his school's ivied halls.

Huettner, 23, is paralyzed from the hips down due to an automobile accident eight years ago.

He attended the university at a desk in the bay window of his home here, with a telephone at his side connected to microphones in campus classrooms.

St. Louis Newspaper Field Is Cut To Two

ST. LOUIS, June 15 (AP)—The St. Louis newspaper field was cut to two today with the sale of the Star-Times to the Pulitzer-owned Post-Dispatch.

The sale, for an undisclosed sum, leaves the Post-Dispatch without competition in the afternoon field here. The city's other daily is the Globe-Democrat, a morning paper.

Publisher Elzey Roberts of the Star-Times said economic conditions forced the transaction.

French Election Set Tomorrow

PARIS, June 15 (AP)—France attempts on Sunday to elect an Assembly which can rule the country after two years of virtual deadlock among the parties forming the government.

But indications are that the French voter is going to be lazy on election day, and that the stalemate will continue—unless there should be a swing from the center parties, which have ruled since 1946, to Gen. Charles DeGaulle. It seems likely that the Communists, now the largest party in the assembly, will lose many seats.

Important decisions on Western defense are waiting on the outcome, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in Washington today on his return from Europe.

A decisive outcome to the four-power deputy foreign ministers conference, dragging since March 5 in a fruitless effort to write an agenda for a Big Four parley, also appears to hinge on the voting.

About 24,600,000 French men and women are eligible to participate in the choosing of 627 deputies in the National Assembly, the house of parliament that really counts, in the first general election since 1946.

But all evidence points to a huge stay-at-home vote. There has been a huge stay-at-home campaign audience.

House Group Finally Approves Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — A $7,233,000,000 tax increase bill, four and a half months in the making, was finally approved today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The vote was 19 to 6, with four Republican members joining the committee's 15 Democrats in endorsing the record revenue measure.

Republicans who oppose all or part of the bill met late today to start writing a minority report setting out their objections.

All Republican members of the House were summoned to a caucus Monday afternoon to discuss the measure. Short of an outright attempt to defeat it, about the only course open is to seek to return it to committee for revision.

Reisner, Organ Parts Manufacturer, Dies

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 15 (AP) —W. Harry Reisner, Jr., known as the world's largest manufacturer of pipe organ supplies, died at his home here today. He was 86.

For more than half a century he had been an industrial and civic leader of Hagerstown, where he settled after operating a jewelry store briefly in Salisbury, N. C.

A native of Mercersburg, Pa., Reisner dabbled in several business enterprises before turning his attention to pipe organ parts manufacturing in 1920.

More than half of all American industrial employes need some form of eye aid to see properly for their jobs, according to an American Optometric association study.

The beds of the ancient Egyptians were so uncomfortable perfumes were used to induce sleep.

Court Of Appeals Upholds Death Penalty For Edwards

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 15 (AP)—Thomas Alexander Edwards, the talkative Freetown negro, was held guilty by Maryland's highest court today of the 1948 Glen Burnie double murder.

Unanimously the Court of Appeals upheld two Baltimore Criminal Court judges who ruled Edwards must hang for the full-moon slaying of a youthful Glen Burnie couple.

"As we cannot say that the verdicts of the trial court were clearly erroneous, the judgments of conviction must be affirmed," Judge Edward S. Delaplaine said.

The decision appeared to be final in the protracted history of the case which shook Southern Maryland three years ago.

Defense counsel was not ready to yield. Former Circuit Judge William J. McWilliams, one of Edwards' attorneys, said he would file a motion to re-argue the appeal.

Sealing the death sentence is up to Gov. McKeldin. He has the power of executive clemency.

Raid Drill Held In Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—A make believe atomic bomb fell on this resort and industrial city of 91,000 at about 5:50 p. m. (EST) tonight.

Nearly 9,000 civilian defense volunteers promptly leaped into action in what CD officials called the nation's most extensive air raid defense drill.

The mock bombing presented the city's CD organization with tremendous problems, not the least of which was a mob of thousands of curious observers right in the middle of things.

"Operation Niagara" left the city in this situation: The downtown area leveled, the extensive electric power generating facilities wrecked, no effective fire fighting equipment left, 22,000 persons dead, 15,000 wounded and another 22,000 burned or blown out of house and home.

CD organizations from seven Western New York counties stepped into the breach, however, with relief crews and fire fighting units.

Iranians Demand AIOC's 'Final Eviction'

TEHRAN, Iran, June 15 (AP) — A wildly cheering mass meeting in Parliament Square demanded today "final eviction" of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. and urged Premier Mohammed Mossadegh to complete his oil nationalization program.

While this meeting was going on representatives of the British company, now negotiating with Iranian officials on the oil question, decided to ask for more time to reply to an Iranian demand for their oil profits.

U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady said tomorrow's meeting at which the Britons will make their request may be the crucial session of the negotiations. Failure of the talks, Grady said, could lead to "chaos."

Seaplane Crash Kills 3

MANILA, Saturday, June 16 (AP)—Three Navy enlisted men were killed in a flaming crash landing of a two-engine U. S. seaplane off Snagley Point Naval Station Thursday night, the Navy announced today.

Fifteen others aboard the plane were rescued. The Navy said the plane was returning from a routine flight to Japan where five passengers were picked up.

House Group To Probe Reds In Defense Effort

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee announced today it will open an investigation here Tuesday of Communism in defense industries with hearings dealing with the Baltimore area.

Committee investigators have been laying the groundwork for the probe for the past several weeks.

Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) said he was not ready yet to identify witnesses to be heard in the Baltimore phase of the hearings.

Michigan Reports Livestock "Rustling"

EAST LANSING, Mich, June 15 (AP) — State police today reported several instances of livestock "rustling"—apparently prompted by the meat shortage.

Two dairy cows, valued at $600 each, were stolen from the Leon Doester farm near Hastings. There also were reports of 10 Duroc hogs being stolen near Dansville and of five Hampshire pigs being taken near Milford.

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—A $7,233,000,000 tax increase bill, four and a half months in the making, was finally approved today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The vote was 19 to 6, with four Republican members joining the committee's 15 Democrats in endorsing the record revenue measure.

Republicans who oppose all or part of the bill met late today to start writing a minority report setting out their objections.

All Republican members of the House were summoned to a caucus Monday afternoon to discuss the measure. Short of an outright attempt to defeat it, about the only course open is to seek to return it to committee for revision.

Reisner, Organ Parts Manufacturer, Dies

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 15 (AP)—W. Harry Reisner, Jr., known as the world's largest manufacturer of pipe organ supplies, died at his home here today. He was 86.

For more than half a century he had been an industrial and civic leader of Hagerstown, where he settled after operating a jewelry store briefly in Salisbury, N. C.

A native of Mercersburg, Pa., Reisner dabbled in several business enterprises before turning his attention to pipe organ parts manufacturing in 1920.

More than half of all American industrial employes need some form of eye aid to see properly for their jobs, according to an American Optometric association study.

The beds of the ancient Egyptians were so uncomfortable perfumes were used to induce sleep.

Court Of Appeals Upholds Death Penalty For Edwards

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 15 (AP)—Thomas Alexander Edwards, the talkative Freetown negro, was held guilty by Maryland's highest court today of the 1948 Glen Burnie double murder.

Unanimously the Court of Appeals upheld two Baltimore Criminal Court judges who ruled Edwards must hang for the full-moon slaying of a youthful Glen Burnie couple.

"As we cannot say that the verdicts of the trial court were clearly erroneous, the judgments of conviction must be affirmed," Judge Edward S. Delaplaine said.

The decision appeared to be final in the protracted history of the case which shook Southern Maryland three years ago.

Defense counsel was not ready to yield. Former Circuit Judge William J. McWilliams, one of Edwards' attorneys, said he would file a motion to re-argue the appeal.

Sealing the death sentence is up to Gov. McKeldin. He has the power of executive clemency.

Raid Drill Held In Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 15 (AP)—A make believe atomic bomb fell on this resort and industrial city of 91,000 at about 5:50 p. m. (EST) tonight.

Nearly 9,000 civilian defense volunteers promptly leaped into action in what CD officials called the nation's most extensive air raid defense drill.

The mock bombing presented the city's CD organization with tremendous problems, not the least of which was a mob of thousands of curious observers right in the middle of things.

"Operation Niagara" left the city in this situation: The downtown area leveled, the extensive electric power generating facilities wrecked, no effective fire fighting equipment left, 22,000 persons dead, 15,000 wounded and another 22,000 burned or blown out of house and home.

CD organizations from seven Western New York counties stepped into the breach, however, with relief crews and fire fighting units.

Iranians Demand AIOC's 'Final Eviction'

TEHRAN, Iran, June 15 (AP)—A wildly cheering mass meeting in Parliament Square demanded today "final eviction" of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. and urged Premier Mohammed Mossadegh to complete his oil nationalization program.

While this meeting was going on representatives of the British company, now negotiating with Iranian officials on the oil question, decided to ask for more time to reply to an Iranian demand for their oil profits.

U. S. Ambassador Henry F. Grady said tomorrow's meeting at which the Britons will make their request may be the crucial session of the negotiations. Failure of the talks, Grady said, could lead to "chaos."

Seaplane Crash Kills 3

MANILA, Saturday, June 16 (AP)—Three Navy enlisted men were killed in a flaming crash landing of a two-engine U. S. seaplane off Snagley Point Naval Station Thursday night, the Navy announced today.

Fifteen others aboard the plane were rescued. The Navy said the plane was returning from a routine flight to Japan where five passengers were picked up.

Louis Stops Savold In 6th; Locke Leads National Open

Brown Bomber Scores KO In Garden Match

Former Heavy Champ Lives Up To 19 To 5 Odds Favoring Him

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—The old Joe Louis dynamite exploded on ring-rusty Lee Savold in 2:29 of the sixth round tonight for a sensational knockout win over the blood-smeared veteran recognized as world champion in Britain.

Looking his best since he started up the long comeback trail toward a promised September date with Ezzard Charles, the 37-year-old bomber received a terrific ovation as he strode from the ring.

A power-laden left hook out of a flurry of punches dumped 35-year-old Savold on the deck for the only knockdown of the scrap. Lee struggled to get up and was just about to make it when Referee Ruby Goldstein enfolded his bloody hulk in his arms.

Savold Spouts Blood

Spouting red like a fountain from a battered nose that probably was broken, Savold was cut down methodically by Louis who made good his pre-fight prediction to the exact round.

"I think I'll knock him out in the sixth," he said at Pompton Lakes ten days ago.

The old Louis left jab, always a ramrod that sent opponents' face bobbing like apples at a Halloween party, was at its best. Seldom did he miss his mark. Time after time he followed it with a crunching short right uppercut as part of a three punch combination that wound up with another hook.

Only in the fifth when a long right hand lead nailed Louis on the jaw, did Savold damage the Bomber. Joe wavered as if hurt but he shook it off and another right that followed.

Savold Wins Round

Trim and sharp at 211¼ to Savold's 190, Louis lived up to the 19 to 5 odds favoring him by winning all the way. The AP card gave Savold only one round, the fifth.

This "Battle Of The Aged" as it had been called as a gag turned out to be quite a show of Louis' determination to cap his comeback with another Charles fight.

Joe is obsessed by a desire to become the first heavyweight champion ever to win back the title he held so many long years.

Away from the ring since he knocked out Bruce Woodcock in London a year ago, Savold appeared way off form. His famed left jab and hook were not connecting although he took the offensive from the first bell.

From the first round on, Savold wore a pained expression on his face, as though surprised at the old zing in Louis' jab. His nose started to bleed in the second. By the fourth round his face was smeared. Then in the sixth it really poured out to gush over ringsiders every time Louis pulled the trigger.

A surprisingly large crowd poured into the Garden through a drizzle to see this contest, twice postponed and finally moved from the Polo Grounds to the inside arena.

Maybe the no-television, no-radio ban helped. In any event the fight "caught on" in the final hours.

The only TV of this scrap was in selected movie theaters in six cities — Chicago, Cleveland, Washington, Baltimore, Albany and Pittsburgh on a closed circuit.

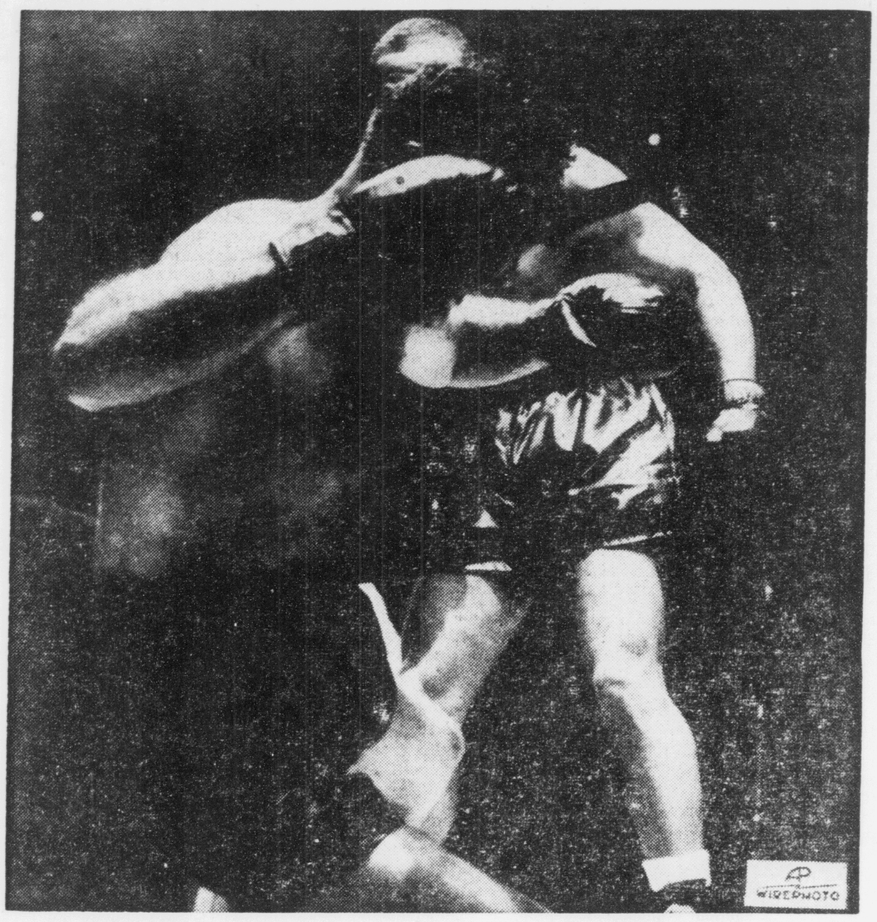
18,000 See Match

The estimated crowd at the fight was 18,000.

From the very start, it seemed that Louis was sure to win inside the 15 round route. Savold's reflexes were slow — he tried to bounce in his old boxing style, but couldn't keep it up under the fire of the Louis jab and hooks.

A check of the official cards revealed Judge Harold Barnes was the only one to give a round to Savold. He gave the fifth. Frank Forbes was the other judge.

It was the sixth straight victory for Louis since he lost to Charles last September and his third knockout, making it 55 knockouts in 68 pro scraps. He started July 4, 1934.



THE END FOR SAVOLD—Lee Savold falls against the ropes as he is knocked out by Joe Louis in 2:29 of the sixth round of their scheduled 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, last night.

Dodgers Edge Chicago, 2-1

Don Newcombe Wins Duel With Minner

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP)—Big Don Newcombe returned to action after a week's layoff today to stop Chicago, 2-1, driving home the winning run with a sixth-inning single.

It was the Dodgers' fourth straight victory on their western tour.

Sidelined last Saturday by a recurrence of an old shoulder injury, Newcombe hit a sensational strikeout pace in the late innings.

In the sixth he struck out the side, interrupted only by Ransom Jackson's two-out single. Then he fanned the first two hitters in the seventh. After the third man grounded out, he fanned Hal Jeffcoat leading off the Cub eighth. Six of his seven victims came in that 2⅓ inning span.

Brooklyn got to Paul Minner, once a Dodger, for both runs in the sixth to overcome an early Cub lead. Jackie Robinson's double, his second of three hits, led off the inning. With one out, Carl Furillo singled home Robinson to tie the score. Rocky Bridges rode Furillo to third with a single and Newcombe won his own game.

Newcombe also contributed a leadoff double in the ninth. Box:

Irish Challenge NCAA's Authority To Curb Live TV

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 15 (AP)—Powerful Notre Dame today challenged the authority of the NCAA to curb "live" telecasts of college football games.

The sharp challenge came from President John J. Cavanaugh, who charged that NCAA policy makers had used "dictatorial powers."

The move by Notre Dame, long a bellwether in the gridiron sport, could prove a turning point in the controversy over the TV restrictions planned by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Father Cavanaugh said member schools and the viewing public "want satisfying answers" to the questions he posed. He expressed the hope that "the issue the plan seems to raise can be clarified."

But Notre Dame, unlike the University of Pennsylvania, did not break with the NCAA. It did not announce whether it would televise its home games this fall.

Eagles Bag 13th, Top Amvets, 4-1

Allan Sheetz pitched a one-hitter yesterday as the undefeated Fraternal Order of Eagles extended their winning streak to 13 games by defeating the Amvets at East Side Field, 4 to 1, in the Rocking Chair Softball League.

Suter Kegg got the only hit for the Amvets in the fourth inning.

Sheetz doubled in a pair of runs with a double in the fifth. Mike Mulvey rapped a double and single and "Doc" Summers starred at third base for the Eagles.

"Doc" Daugherty featured afield for the Amvets, turning in several nice running catches. The score:

EAGLES ..... 001 030 0—4 8 1
AMVETS ..... 001 000 0—1 1 1

Sheetz and Riehl. Scaletta and Kegg.

Keyser Ridge Loses To Grantsville, 3-1

Keyser Ridge went down to defeat at the hands of Grantsville yesterday in a Southern Somerset County Baseball League game at Grantsville in Garrett County. The score was 3-1.

Only five hits were chalked up by the teams — two by Grantsville and three by Keyser Ridge.

The outcome of yesterday's game enabled Meyersdale to tie Keyser Ridge for first place. Each team has won six games and lost two.

McKenzie accounted for two of the three hits made by the losers. Ayers and Buckel obtained Grantsville's bingles. Score:

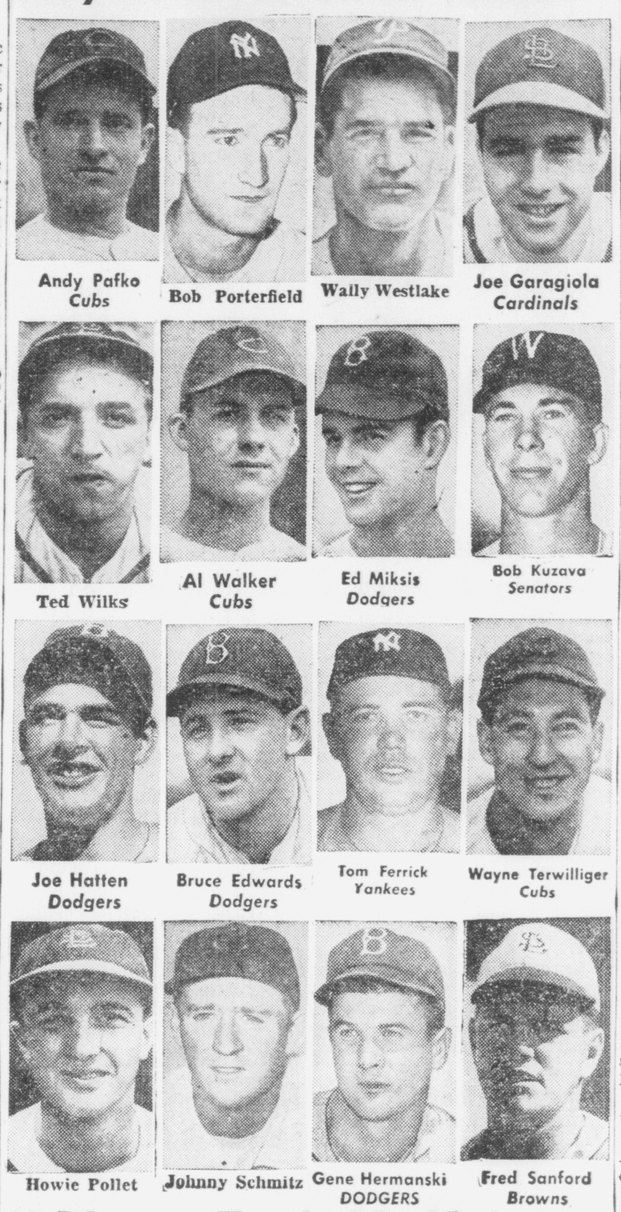
Players Involved In Trades



19 Players Traded In Majors, Dodgers Get Pafko, Schmitz

Westlake, Chambers Sent To Cardinals; Six Teams In Deals

[By The Associated Press]

Six major league baseball clubs, racing to meet the midnight deadline on trades, engaged in wholesale swaps today with every indication the New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers definitely strengthened themselves.

Here is how the trades shaped up:

Brooklyn Dodgers—Got Outfielder Andy Pafko, pitcher Johnny Schmitz, catcher Al Walker and second baseman Wayne Terwilliger from Chicago Cubs who received southpaw pitcher Joe Hatten, catcher Bruce Edwards, infielder Eddie Miksis and outfielder Gene Hermanski.

New York Yankees—Acquired Bob Kuzava from

Washington Senators — Who received Fred Sanford, Tom Ferrick and Bob Porterfield. All are pitchers.

St. Louis Cardinals — acquired Wally Westlake, infielder, and Cliff Chambers, left-hand pitcher from

Yankees Get Southpaw

The champion Yankees, presently running second to Chicago's high flying White Sox in the American League, landed a promising 28-year-old southpaw in Kuzava in response to Manager Casey Stengel's urgent plea for pitching help.

If the Bombers gave the Washington Senators anything of importance in exchange for the front line hurler, it was not immediately apparent. They surrended Sanford, the $100,000 "lemon"; Ferrick, a relief flinger who has done little this year, and Porterfield, a righthander who has been toiling for their Kansas City farm.

Seven players were involved in an exchange between the Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates, the first big deal engineered by Branch Rickey since he became general manager of the Corsairs.

The Cards received two top-flight performers in Wally Westlake, one of the National League's most virile sluggers who already has whacked 16 home runs, and Cliff Chambers, a lefthander who delivered a no-hitter against Boston early in the season and who stands 3-6 for a last place club.

Bucs Get Two Pitchers

In exchange the Pirates landed Pollet, whom Rickey long has coveted; Joe Garagiola, Howerton, Wilks and Cole.

Pollet, long one of the National League's slickest moundsmen, held out obstinately this past spring, reported late and has been unable to recover his form for the Cards.. His record stands at an unimpressive 0-3, but Rickey undoubtedly feels that a change of climate will prove beneficial.

Garagiola, while never living up to the promise of his brilliant rookie year, will give the Pirates catching strength they have needed badly. Wilks was one of the game's great relief pitchers before last season, when he underwent an elbow operation. There is always a chanc he will come back. Howerton is an average outfielder, Cole a possibility for the future.

Westlake played outfield for the Pirates until this season, when he was moved in to third base. It did not affect his clubbing. His .282 average up to today represented 45 runs batted in, second best in the league, and his 16 homers were second only to Gil Hodges' 20 for Brooklyn.

GOES TO CARDS — Pitcher Cliff Chambers, above, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was traded along with Wally Westlake, slugging third sacker, to the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday. Pittsburgh obtained five players in the deal.

Byrne Traded For Overmire

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—The New York Yankees completed their second trade of the day shortly before the midnight deadline tonight when they traded southpaw pitcher Tommy Byrne to the St. Louis Browns for pitcher "Stubby" Overmire and cash said to be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Byrne has a season's record of two victories and one defeat. Overmire, used chiefly in relief, has won one and dropped six.

Dave Douglas Trails Bobby By One Stroke

South African Posts 144 At Halfway Mark, Snead Falters To 149

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 15 (AP)—South Africa's Bobby Locke tamed awesome Oakland Hills with flawless iron play today to wrest the halfway lead in the United States open golf championship with a score of 144, four over par.

Bobby Locke

Rifling his approaches to every green and putting for birdies on all but three, the chubby British open champion fashioned a second round 36-35—71 for a one-stroke advantage over Dave Douglas of Newark, Del.

Douglas, with 34-36, was one of two men to equal the rugged 35-35—70 par of this treacherously-trapped layout. Big John Bulla of Verona, Pa., was the other with a pair of steady 35's, but his total was 150.

Sam Snead Falters

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., first round leader with a 71, faltered badly to take a 38-40—78 for 149 that left him five strokes off the pace going into tomorrow's climatic 36-hole grind.

Also five strokes in arrears and despairing of his chances of ever catching up was the little defending champion, Ben Hogan, who added a 73 to his first round 76.

'It would take two sub-par rounds for me to make it and even then I'm not sure it would be enough," said the champion, who is seeking his third title in four years.

Alone in third place with 146 was the sensational amateur Francis (Bo) Wininger, a former Oklahoma A. and M. student registering out of Northfield, N. J.

Wininger fired a 34-37—71 in the second round to bracket with a previous 75. The open hasn't had an amateur king since Johnny Goodman in 1933.

The United States amateur champion, Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y., faltered after a blazing sub-par start to record a 33-38—71 for 149. Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, the 1951 British amateur king, had a 77 for 151.

Five tourney-tough professionals were bracketed at 147, just ready to leap in if Locke or Douglas should falter in Saturday's trying test.

They were Paul Runyan, the tiny two-time PGA champion from Pasadena, Calif., with a 73-74; Lew Worsham, 1947 Open champion from Oakmont, Pa., 76-71; Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., 72-75; Al (Red) Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., 73-74; and Charles (Chuck) Klein of San Antonio, Tex., 73-74.

The humid, sunny day that attracted a crowd of 11,500 produced another might wrangle with Oakland Hills' needle-eyed fairways and hazardous rough.

Course Is Unconquered

And after more than 300 stabs at it by the mightiest golfers in the game today the 6,927-yard course remains unconquered, though held to a draw by remarkable efforts on the part of Douglas and Bulla.

Nevertheless, it was the knickered South African — "Old Muffin Face," the pros call him — who turned out to be the featured actor in this great golf show.

It has been 31 years since an invader snatched a U. S. Open championship. Big Ted Ray, a huge mustachioed Englishman, was the last to turn the trick. That was in 1920 in Toledo's Inverness.

Four of the nine former champions failed to make the grade. They were Lawson Little (1940) of Pebble Beach, Calif., with 76-79—155; Tony Manero (1936) of Greenwich, Conn., with 77-79—156; Sam Parks (1935) of Oakmont, Pa., with 79-77—158 and Billy Burke (1931) of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, with 77-77—154.

Louis Stops Savold In 6th; Locke Leads National Open

Brown Bomber Scores KO In Garden Match

Former Heavy Champ Lives Up To 19 To 5 Odds Favoring Him

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—The old Joe Louis dynamite exploded on ring-rusty Lee Savold in 2:29 of the sixth round tonight for a sensational knockout win over the blood-smeared veteran recognized as world champion in Britain.

Looking his best since he started up the long comeback trail toward a promised September date with Ezzard Charles, the 37-year-old bomber received a terrific ovation as he strode from the ring.

A power-laden left hook out of a flurry of punches dumped 35-year-old Savold on the deck for the only knockdown of the scrap. Lee struggled to get up and was just about to make it when Referee Ruby Goldstein enfolded his bloody hulk in his arms.

Savold Spouts Blood

Spouting red like a fountain from a battered nose that probably was broken, Savold was cut down methodically by Louis who made good his pre-fight prediction to the exact round.

"I think I'll knock him out in the sixth," he said at Pompton Lakes ten days ago.

The old Louis left jab, always a ramrod that sent opponents' face bobbing like apples at a Halloween party, was at its best. Seldom did he miss his mark. Time after time he followed it with a crunching short right uppercut as part of a three punch combination that wound up with another hook.

Only in the fifth when a long right hand lead nailed Louis on the jaw, did Savold damage the Bomber. Joe wavered as if hurt but he shook it off and another right that followed.

Savold Wins Round

Trim and sharp at 211¼ to Savold's 190, Louis lived up to the 19 to 5 odds favoring him by winning all the way. The AP card gave Savold only one round, the fifth.

This "Battle Of The Aged" as it had been called as a gag turned out to be quite a show of Louis' determination to cap his comeback with another Charles fight.

Joe is obsessed by a desire to become the first heavyweight champion ever to win back the title he held so many long years.

Away from the ring since he knocked out Bruce Woodcock in London a year ago, Savold appeared way off form. His famed left jab and hook were not connecting although he took the offensive from the first bell.

From the first round on, Savold wore a pained expression on his face, as though surprised at the old zing in Louis' jab. His nose started to bleed in the second. By the fourth round his face was smeared. Then in the sixth it really poured out to gush over ringsiders every time Louis pulled the trigger.

A surprisingly large crowd poured into the Garden through a drizzle to see this contest, twice postponed and finally moved from the Polo Grounds to the inside arena.

Maybe the no-television, no-radio ban helped. In any event the fight "caught on" in the final hours.

The only TV of this scrap was in selected movie theaters in six cities — Chicago, Cleveland, Washington, Baltimore, Albany and Pittsburgh on a closed circuit.

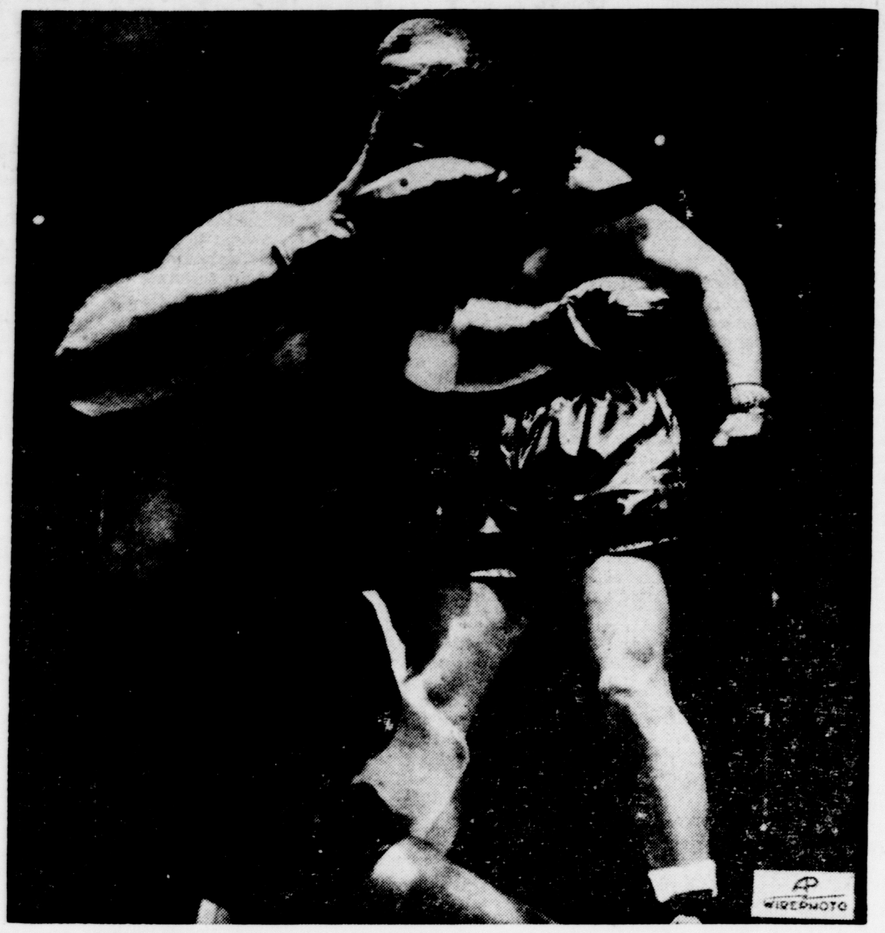
18,000 See Match

The estimated crowd at the fight was 18,000.

From the very start, it seemed that Louis was sure to win inside the 15 round route. Savold's reflexes were slow — he tried to bounce in his old boxing style, but couldn't keep it up under the fire of the Louis jab and hooks.

A check of the official cards revealed Judge Harold Barnes was the only one to give a round to Savold. He gave the fifth. Frank Forbes was the other judge.

It was the sixth straight victory for Louis since he lost to Charles last September and his third knockout, making it 55 knockouts in 68 pro scraps. He started July 4, 1934.



THE END FOR SAVOLD—Lee Savold falls against the ropes as he is knocked out by Joe Louis in 2:29 of the sixth round of their scheduled 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, last night.

Dodgers Edge Chicago, 2-1

Don Newcombe Wins Duel With Minner

CHICAGO, June 15 (AP)—Big Don Newcombe returned to action after a week's layoff today to stop Chicago, 2-1, driving home the winning run with a sixth-inning single.

It was the Dodgers' fourth straight victory on their western tour.

Sidelined last Saturday by a recurrence of an old shoulder injury, Newcombe hit a sensational strikeout pace in the late innings.

In the sixth he struck out the side, interrupted only by Ransom Jackson's two-out single. Then he fanned the first two hitters in the seventh. After the third man grounded out, he fanned Hal Jeffcoat leading off the Cub eighth. Six of his seven victims came in that 2⅓ inning span.

Brooklyn got to Paul Minner, once a Dodger, for both runs in the sixth to overcome an early Cub lead. Jackie Robinson's double, his second of three hits, led off the inning. With one out, Carl Furillo singled home Robinson to tie the score. Rocky Bridges rode Furillo to third with a single and Newcombe won his own game.

Newcombe also contributed a leadoff double in the ninth. Box:

Irish Challenge NCAA's Authority To Curb Live TV

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 15 (AP)—Powerful Notre Dame today challenged the authority of the NCAA to curb "live" telecasts of college football games.

The sharp challenge came from President John J. Cavanaugh, who charged that NCAA policy makers had used "dictatorial powers."

The move by Notre Dame, long a bellwether in the gridiron sport, could prove a turning point in the controversy over the TV restrictions planned by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Father Cavanaugh said member schools and the viewing public "want satisfying answers" to the questions he posed. He expressed the hope that "the issue the plan seems to raise can be clarified."

But Notre Dame, unlike the University of Pennsylvania, did not break with the NCAA. It did not announce whether it would televise its home games this fall.

Eagles Bag 13th, Top Amvets, 4-1

Allan Sheetz pitched a one-hitter yesterday as the undefeated Fraternal Order of Eagles extended their winning streak to 13 games by defeating the Amvets at East Side Field, 4 to 1, in the Rocking Chair Softball League.

Suter Kegg got the only hit for the Amvets in the fourth inning.

Sheetz doubled in a pair of runs with a double in the fifth. Mike Mulvey rapped a double and single and "Doc" Summers starred at third base for the Eagles.

"Doc" Daugherty featured afield for the Amvets, turning in several nice running catches. The score:

EAGLES ..... 001 030 0—4 8 1
AMVETS ..... 001 000 0—1 1 1

Players Involved In Trades

19 Players Traded In Majors, Dodgers Get Pafko, Schmitz

Westlake, Chambers Sent To Cardinals; Six Teams In Deals

[By The Associated Press]

Six major league baseball clubs, racing to meet the midnight deadline on trades, engaged in wholesale swaps today with every indication the New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers definitely strengthened themselves.

Here is how the trades shaped up:

Brooklyn Dodgers—Got Outfielder Andy Pafko, pitcher Johnny Schmitz, catcher Al Walker and second baseman Wayne Terwilliger from Chicago Cubs who received southpaw pitcher Joe Hatten, catcher Bruce Edwards, infielder Eddie Miksis and outfielder Gene Hermanski.

New York Yankees—Acquired Bob Kuzava from

Washington Senators — Who received Fred Sanford, Tom Ferrick and Bob Porterfield. All are pitchers.

St. Louis Cardinals — acquired Wally Westlake, infielder, and Cliff Chambers, left-hand pitcher from

Yankees Get Southpaw

The champion Yankees, presently running second to Chicago's high flying White Sox in the American League, landed a promising 28-year-old southpaw in Kuzava in response to Manager Casey Stengel's urgent plea for pitching help.

If the Bombers gave the Washington Senators anything of importance in exchange for the front line hurler, it was not immediately apparent. They surrended Sanford, the $100,000 "lemon"; Ferrick, a relief flinger who has done little this year, and Porterfield, a righthander who has been toiling for their Kansas City farm.

Seven players were involved in an exchange between the Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates, the first big deal engineered by Branch Rickey since he became general manager of the Corsairs.

The Cards received two top-flight performers in Wally Westlake, one of the National League's most virile sluggers who already has whacked 16 home runs, and Cliff Chambers, a lefthander who delivered a no-hitter against Boston early in the season and who stands 3-6 for a last place club.

Bucs Get Two Pitchers

In exchange the Pirates landed Pollet, whom Rickey long has coveted; Joe Garagiola, Howerton, Wilks and Cole.

Pollet, long one of the National League's slickest moundsmen, held out obstinately this past spring, reported late and has been unable to recover his form for the Cards.. His record stands at an unimpressive 0-3, but Rickey undoubtedly feels that a change of climate will prove beneficial.

Garagiola, while never living up to the promise of his brilliant rookie year, will give the Pirates catching strength they have needed badly. Wilks was one of the game's great relief pitchers before last season, when he underwent an elbow operation. There is always a chanc he will come back. Howerton is an average outfielder, Cole a possibility for the future.

Westlake played outfield for the Pirates until this season, when he was moved in to third base. It did not affect his clubbing. His .282 average up to today represented 45 runs batted in, second best in the league, and his 16 homers were second only to Gil Hodges' 20 for Brooklyn.

GOES TO CARDS — Pitcher Cliff Chambers, above, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was traded along with Wally Westlake, slugging third sacker, to the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday. Pittsburgh obtained five players in the deal.

Byrne Traded For Overmire

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP)—The New York Yankees completed their second trade of the day shortly before the midnight deadline tonight when they traded southpaw pitcher Tommy Byrne to the St. Louis Browns for pitcher "Stubby" Overmire and cash said to be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Byrne has a season's record of two victories and one defeat. Overmire, used chiefly in relief, has won one and dropped six.

Men Golfers To Play Sour Hole Tournament

The next team match is with the Fountain Head Country Club at Hagerstown on Sunday, June 24.

Dave Douglas Trails Bobby By One Stroke

South African Posts 144 At Halfway Mark, Snead Falters To 149

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BIRMINGHAM, Mich., June 15 (AP)—South Africa's Bobby Locke tamed awesome Oakland Hills with flawless iron play today to wrest the halfway lead in the United States open golf championship with a score of 144, four over par.

Bobby Locke

Rifling his approaches to every green and putting for birdies on all but three, the chubby British open champion fashioned a second round 36-35—71 for a one-stroke advantage over Dave Douglas of Newark, Del.

Douglas, with 34-36, was one of two men to equal the rugged 85-35—70 par of this treacherously-trapped layout. Big John Bulla of Verona, Pa., was the other with a pair of steady 35's, but his total was 150.

Sam Snead Falters

Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., first round leader with a 71, faltered badly to take a 38-40—78 for 149 that left him five strokes off the pace going into tomorrow's climatic 36-hole grind.

Also five strokes in arrears and despairing of his chances of ever catching up was the little defending champion, Ben Hogan, who added a 73 to his first round 76.

'It would take two sub-par rounds for me to make it and even then I'm not sure it would be enough," said the champion, who is seeking his third title in four years.

Alone in third place with 146 was the sensational amateur Francis (Bo) Wininger, a former Oklahoma A. and M. student registering out of Northfield, N. J.

Wininger fired a 34-37—71 in the second round to bracket with a previous 75. The open hasn't had an amateur king since Johnny Goodman in 1933.

The United States amateur champion, Sam Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y., faltered after a blazing subpar start to record a 33-38—71 for 149. Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, the 1951 British amateur king, had a 77 for 151.

Five tourney-tough professionals were bracketed at 147, just ready to leap in if Locke or Douglas should falter in Saturday's trying test.

They were Paul Runyan, the tiny two-time PGA champion from Pasadena, Calif., with a 73-74; Lew Worsham, 1947 Open champion from Oakmont, Pa., 76-71; Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., 72-75; Al (Red) Brosch of Garden City, N. Y., 73-74; and Charles (Chuck) Klein of San Antonio, Tex., 73-74.

The humid, sunny day that attracted a crowd of 11,500 produced another might wrangle with Oakland Hills' needle-eyed fairways and hazardous rough.

Course Is Unconquered

And after more than 300 stabs at it by the mightiest golfers in the game today the 6,927-yard course remains unconquered, though held to a draw by remarkable efforts on the part of Douglas and Bulla.

Nevertheless, it was the knickered South African — "Old Muffin Face," the pros call him — who turned out to be the featured actor in this great golf show.

It has been 31 years since an invader snatched a U. S. Open championship. Big Ted Ray, a huge mustachioed Englishman, was the last to turn the trick. That was in 1920 in Toledo's Inverness.

Four of the nine former champions failed to make the grade. They were Lawson Little (1940) of Pebble Beach, Calif., with 76-79—155; Tony Manero (1936) of Greenwich, Conn., with 77-79—156; Sam Parks (1935) of Oakmont, Pa., with 79-77—158 and Billy Burke (1931) of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, with 77-77—154.

13 Colleges Vie In Rowing World Series

224 Oarsmen In 28 Crews Await Regatta At Marietta Today

MARIETTA, O., June 15 (AP)—Two hundred twenty-four college oarsmen—months of back-breaking practice toil behind them—sweep down the Ohio river in the colorful Marietta regatta tomorrow.

For 28 crews from 13 colleges, it's the "world series" of rowing.

But, the weatherman may determine the winner of the national collegiate rowing crown.

Last year, when the race was lured away from its traditional home in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a flood forced the stewards to cut the length from three miles down to two. Bad conditions again probably would mean that the regatta would not return here again soon.

The Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta, scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m. (EST), promises to be one of the fastest in history.

A current estimated at three and one-half miles an hour will add plenty of speed to the oarsmen's own efforts. And, floating debris from the rain-swollen river will be a constant hazard to the fragile shells.

Observers still rated Washington, California, and Princeton, in that order, as top contenders for the 1951 crown.

But with swift currents, debris and uncertain weather conditions, experts were not ruling out a possible upset. Wisconsin and Pennsylvania were possibilities.

Freshman crews from California, Cornell, Mit, Navy, Penn, Princeton, Washington and Wisconsin row first in a two-mile event scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Then junior varsity crews from California, Columbia, Cornell, Marietta College, Navy, Penn, Princeton and Washington follow in the three-mile j. v. event scheduled at 3:10 p. m.

The 12 varsity crews for the big event set for 4 p. m. are Boston, California, Columbia, Cornell, Mit, Navy, Penn, Princeton, Stanford, Syracuse, Washington and Wisconsin.

The varsity crew of Washington, which swept the Ohio river in all three races here last June 17, is rated inferior to its 1950 predecessor. But a west coast observer says if Al Ulbrickson's varsity crew gets a good tail wind, they're in.

The river was rising fast today. It was expected to go from 15.8 feet yesterday to 22 feet by tonight.

The river is expected to crest well below flood stage of 36 feet by tomorrow night.

Serious Disease Affects Mourning Dove Population

Parasite Causes Death Of Important Game Bird, Marylanders Asked To Help In Investigation

Most interested persons know that mourning doves are migratory and nest throughout Maryland.

Not many, however, are aware of the fact that last year a serious disease affected the population in the southeastern states. It was more serious in Alabama where dead birds were picked up in 43 of the state's 67 counties.

It is probable that doves migrating to and from Alabama have carried the disease to other states, and quite possible into the State of Maryland. The height of the disease is generally midsummer, but it is not too early to be on the watch for it in this state.

The cause of the deaths is a parasite known as Trichomonas gallinae. It forms large, yellowish swellings in the upper part of the throat, making it impossible for the birds to eat properly. It results in loss of weight and eventually in most cases death.

The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission requests all persons to send promptly any dead mourning doves they may find to their local game warden; specimens should be carefully wrapped, but not frozen. The future of mourning dove hunting in the southeastern states will be seriously affected if the full effects of this disease are not realized, and no cure or way to eradicate it is found.

Mourning dove is the south's second most important game bird, outranked only by the Bobwhite quail.

Your help in this investigation will be very much appreciated by the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

Cresaptown Methodist defeated First Presbyterian, 14-6, in the opening game, and United Brethren split even with First Methodist in the first two games of the semi-final playoffs in the Central YMCA Sunday School Softball League yesterday. U. B. won the first game, 3-1, and First Methodist copped the nightcap, 4-2.

Cresaptown collected 16 hits including triples by Merritt, Horton and Wilson. Ronnie George homered for the Presbyterians.

The second game of the Cresaptown-Presbyterian series is set for Monday at 1:30 at Allegany Field.

George McGregor's home run with two aboard in the third inning enabled U. B. to take the opener of the twin bill.

Ronnie Barb's three-base wallop with two on the paths decided the second game in First Methodist's favor.

The third and deciding game of this series is set for Monday at 6 p. m. at East Side. The scores:

Beef Shortage Is Prevalent In Local Markets

The shortage of beef has resulted in some stores taking on a war time appearance.

One buyer for a large market here reported the beef situation is critical, with only a limited amount being delivered. A good cut can sometimes be purchased by shopping around.

In fact, he said he checked five meat packers in the area one day this week, and three of them said they could not supply him with a pound of beef. Only small orders were sent from the other two.

Most stores have found that hamburger, the popular and versatile ground beef, is scarcer than any kind of beef.

Limit On Purchases

One market has placed a four-pound hamburger limitation on buyers, while at another the hamburger is usually gone by noon.

The situation isn't getting any better. One packer here said his company refuses to pay more than the ceiling price for beef and thus is able to buy only a small amount.

The cattle raisers have ranges with good grass at this time of the year and can afford to let their stock fatten up while they meet with government authorities on the ceiling price debate, he said.

At the Cumberland Stockyards this week, one store buyer reported, only a few bulls were sold, but no beef cattle.

Other types of meat are moving rapidly because of the increased demand brought about by the shortage of beef. There are plenty of chickens available.

Pork is getting a little scarce as hog butchering is held to a minimum during the summer months.

Price Changes Revealed

A packing industry magazine recently revealed these figures on the distribution of the beef dollar.

In 1939, the retailer got 25.7 per cent; packer, 26.8 per cent and the farmer 47.5 per cent.

In 1951 the retailer gets 19 per cent; the packer, 18.3 per cent, and the farmer 62.7 per cent.

Based on average Chicago prices, here's how the price of meat on the hoof has increased since 1941.

In 1941, a 1,100-pound steer brought $130.90, while today the price is $375.10. A 240-pound hog in 1941 sold for $18.48, today $48.89, a 90-pound lamb in 1941 cost $9.15 while today it is $30.38.

Permanent Registration Plan Explained To County Board

At a meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday morning spokesmen for three firms who submitted bids to furnish supplies for setting up a permanent registration system along with William A. Wilson, chairman of the Board of Election Supervisors, told their story.

Wilson told the board the bid of the Cumberland Office Supply Company to furnish a visible file system was accepted. He said the Board of Election Supervisors decided this was the best system and that the local company promised delivery of the supplies within two weeks. (Wilson is an employe of the Cumberland Office Supply Company.)

Quick Delivery Promised

There were several developments concerning the use of the visible file system. Wilson said it was deemed the most efficient one offered and that with early delivery permanent registration could be underway about July 1. He said the other two firms, the Ankeney Company and Marquis Company, could not guarantee delivery under two to four months with the Ankeney company stating 60 days and the Marquis firm four months.

O. M. Marquis, an official of one firm, stated that his company had been the low bidder on both the visible and vertical file systems.

William H. Lemmert, president of the commissioners, asked how James E. Kenny, the Democratic member of the Election Board voted. Wilson said Kenny did not vote and quoted the Democratic member as saying: "It's no use, I'm outvoted anyway."

Frederick D. Steiding, an official of the Cumberland Office Supply Company, explained how the visible file system works and outlined its advanatges over the vertical system.

Dispute On Change

When he stated that Frederick county was changing from the vertical file to visible file system, Lemmert countered with the information that he (Lemmert) yesterday telephoned Miles Hooper, president of the Frederick County Board of Commissioners, on that point. Lemmert said he was told that Frederick county is using the vertical file system. Wilson then interjected the information that a clerk in the Washington county election board office had told him that Frederick county was changing its system.

The county commissioners said that the question involved is mainly one of costs and they pointed out that the old election board, which went out of office in May, had presented a budget under which the vertical file systems was to be used.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the county commissioners, explained that the commissioners by resolution on March 13 had put into operation a system of permanent registration. By law, the old board of election supervisors had to set up a budget for the coming year and it did so. The resolution passed by the commissioners made the permanent system of registration in effect until June 1, when legislation sponsored by State Senator Robert B. Kimble became effective.

Must Pay Expenses

Getty said that the commissioners under the law are required to pay the expenses of operating the Board of Election Supervisors and by accepting the budget submitted by the old board in April had done their duty. It is up to the commissioners to act on any new budget requests of the new election board, Getty declared.

Wilson was asked by Lemmert to furnish a copy of the minutes of the new election board at its last meeting.

Wilson told Commissioner James Orr that the difference in the cost of the two systems is about $4,700. He also pointed out the election board is vested with the power under the law to determine what is the best system. He also cited the case last year when the county commissioners had decided to purchase a car for use by the sheriff's office even though the bid was higher than one submitted by another dealer.

13 Colleges Vie In Rowing World Series

224 Oarsmen In 28 Crews Await Regatta At Marietta Today

MARIETTA, O., June 15 (AP)—Two hundred twenty-four college oarsmen—months of back-breaking practice toil behind them—sweep down the Ohio river in the colorful Marietta regatta tomorrow.

For 28 crews from 13 colleges, it's the "world series" of rowing.

But, the weatherman may determine the winner of the national collegiate rowing crown.

Last year, when the race was lured away from its traditional home in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a flood forced the stewards to cut the length from three miles down to two. Bad conditions again probably would mean that the regatta would not return here again soon.

The Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta, scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m. (EST), promises to be one of the fastest in history.

A current estimated at three and one-half miles an hour will add plenty of speed to the oarsmen's own efforts. And, floating debris from the rain-swollen river will be a constant hazard to the fragile shells.

Observers still rated Washington, California, and Princeton, in that order, as top contenders for the 1951 crown.

But with swift currents, debris and uncertain weather conditions, experts were not ruling out a possible upset. Wisconsin and Pennsylvania were possibilities.

Freshman crews from California, Cornell, Mit, Navy, Penn, Princeton, Washington and Wisconsin row first in a two-mile event scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Then junior varsity crews from California, Columbia, Cornell, Marietta College, Navy, Penn, Princeton and Washington follow in the three-mile j. v. event scheduled at 3:10 p. m.

The 12 varsity crews for the big event set for 4 p. m. are Boston, California, Columbia, Cornell, Mit, Navy, Penn, Princeton, Stanford, Syracuse, Washington and Wisconsin.

The varsity crew of Washington, which swept the Ohio river in all three races here last June 17, is rated inferior to its 1950 predecessor. But a west coast observer says if Al Ulbrickson's varsity crew gets a good tail wind, they're in.

The river was rising fast today. It was expected to go from 15.8 feet yesterday to 22 feet by tonight.

The river is expected to crest well below flood stage of 36 feet by tomorrow night.

Serious Disease Affects Mourning Dove Population

Parasite Causes Death Of Important Game Bird, Marylanders Asked To Help In Investigation

Most interested persons know that mourning doves are migratory and nest throughout Maryland.

Not many, however, are aware of the fact that last year a serious disease affected the population in the southeastern states. It was more serious in Alabama where dead birds were picked up in 43 of the state's 67 counties.

It is probable that doves migrating to and from Alabama have carried the disease to other states, and quite possible into the State of Maryland. The height of the disease is generally midsummer, but it is not too early to be on the watch for it in this state.

The cause of the deaths is a parasite known as Trichomonas gallinae. It forms large, yellowish swellings in the upper part of the throat, making it impossible for the birds to eat properly. It results in loss of weight and eventually in most cases death.

The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission requests all persons to send promptly any dead mourning doves they may find to their local game warden; specimens should be carefully wrapped, but not frozen. The future of mourning dove hunting in the southeastern states will be seriously affected if the full effects of this disease are not realized, and no cure or way to eradicate it is found.

Mourning dove is the south's second most important game bird, outranked only by the Bobwhite quail.

Your help in this investigation will be very much appreciated by the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

First Methodist, UB Divide, Cresaptown Beats Presbyterian

Cresaptown Methodist defeated First Presbyterian, 14-6, in the opening game, and United Brethren split even with First Methodist in the first two games of the semi-final playoffs in the Central YMCA Sunday School Softball League yesterday. U. B. won the first game, 3-1, and First Methodist copped the nightcap, 4-2.

Cresaptown collected 16 hits including triples by Merritt, Horton and Wilson. Ronnie George homered for the Presbyterians.

The second game of the Cresaptown-Presbyterian series is set for Monday at 1:30 at Allegany Field.

George McGregor's home run with two aboard in the third inning enabled U. B. to take the opener of the twin bill.

Ronnie Barb's three-base wallop with two on the paths decided the second game in First Methodist's favor.

The third and deciding game of this series is set for Monday at 6 p. m. at East Side. The scores:

Beef Shortage Is Prevalent In Local Markets

The shortage of beef has resulted in some stores taking on a war time appearance.

One buyer for a large market here reported the beef situation is critical, with only a limited amount being delivered. A good cut can sometimes be purchased by shopping around.

In fact, he said he checked five meat packers in the area one day this week, and three of them said they could not supply him with a pound of beef. Only small orders were sent from the other two.

Most stores have found that hamburger, the popular and versatile ground beef, is scarcer than any kind of beef.

Limit On Purchases

One market has placed a four-pound hamburger limitation on buyers, while at another the hamburger is usually gone by noon.

The situation isn't getting any better. One packer here said his company refuses to pay more than the ceiling price for beef and thus is able to buy only a small amount.

The cattle raisers have ranges with good grass at this time of the year and can afford to let their stock fatten up while they meet with government authorities on the ceiling price debate, he said.

At the Cumberland Stockyards this week, one store buyer reported, only a few bulls were sold, but no beef cattle.

Other types of meat are moving rapidly because of the increased demand brought about by the shortage of beef. There are plenty of chickens available.

Pork is getting a little scarce as hog butchering is held to a minimum during the summer months.

Price Changes Revealed

A packing industry magazine recently revealed these figures on the distribution of the beef dollar.

In 1939, the retailer got 25.7 per cent; packer, 26.8 per cent and the farmer 47.5 per cent.

In 1951 the retailer gets 19 per cent; the packer, 18.3 per cent, and the farmer 62.7 per cent.

Permanent Registration Plan Explained To County Board

At a meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday morning spokesmen for three firms who submitted bids to furnish supplies for setting up a permanent registration system along with William A. Wilson, chairman of the Board of Election Supervisors, told their story.

Wilson told the board the bid of the Cumberland Office Supply Company to furnish a visible file system was accepted. He said the Board of Election Supervisors decided this was the best system and that the local company promised delivery of the supplies within two weeks. (Wilson is an employe of the Cumberland Office Supply Company.)

Quick Delivery Promised

There were several developments concerning the use of the visible file system. Wilson said it was deemed the most efficient one offered and that with early delivery permanent registration could be underway about July 1. He said the other two firms, the Ankeney Company and Marquis Company, could not guarantee delivery under two to four months with the Ankeney company stating 60 days and the Marquis firm four months.

O. M. Marquis, an official of one firm, stated that his company had been the low bidder on both the visible and vertical file systems.

William H. Lemmert, president of the commissioners, asked how James E. Kenny, the Democratic member of the Election Board voted. Wilson said Kenny did not vote and quoted the Democratic member as saying: "It's no use, I'm outvoted anyway."

Frederick D. Steiding, an official of the Cumberland Office Supply Company, explained how the visible file system works and outlined its advanatges over the vertical system.

Dispute On Change

When he stated that Frederick county was changing from the vertical file to visible file system, Lemmert countered with the information that he (Lemmert) yesterday telephoned Miles Hooper, president of the Frederick County Board of Commissioners, on that point. Lemmert said he was told that Frederick county is using the vertical file system. Wilson then interjected the information that a clerk in the Washington county election board office had told him that Frederick county was changing its system.

The county commissioners said that the question involved is mainly one of costs and they pointed out that the old election board, which went out of office in May, had presented a budget under which the vertical file systems was to be used.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the county commissioners, explained that the commissioners by resolution on March 13 had put into operation a system of permanent registration. By law, the old board of election supervisors had to set up a budget for the coming year and it did so. The resolution passed by the commissioners made the permanent system of registration in effect until June 1, when legislation sponsored by State Senator Robert B. Kimble became effective.

Must Pay Expenses

Getty said that the commissioners under the law are required to pay the expenses of operating the Board of Election Supervisors and by accepting the budget submitted by the old board in April had done their duty. It is up to the commissioners to act on any new budget requests of the new election board, Getty declared.

Wilson was asked by Lemmert to furnish a copy of the minutes of the new election board at its last meeting.

Wilson told Commissioner James Orr that the difference in the cost of the two systems is about $4,700. He also pointed out the election board is vested with the power under the law to determine what is the best system. He also cited the case last year when the county commissioners had decided to purchase a car for use by the sheriff's office even though the bid was higher than one submitted by another dealer.

Kiwanians Of Keyser Hear Bells

KEYSER, W. Va.—William W. Wolfe, North Church Street, Keyser, was guest speaker at the weekly dinner meeting of Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday evening.

His talk was one of the most interesting this season, using as his subject, "The Bells of India." His talk was illustrated by the presentation and ringing of bells imported from India, bells that are used in various steps of life in the oriental countries of the East.

The speaker has been gathering bells from India, Indonesia, Bali and Tibet for a number of years, enlarging his collection through personal contacts with missionaries and others who have visited the Eastern Countries.

The construction of the bells as well as their size, tone pitches, size and shape were impressed on his audience, and of especial interest were some of the bells made from wood, some from the heart of the palm trees, which were suprise offerings because of the resonant tones. A set of bells laboriously cut into tuning forks from the base to the tip all around, with a tapper on the inside drew great attention because of their accurate multiple clear tones blending with each stroke.

Most of the bells are made of brass, while others are of cheaper metal. Decorations on the bells and other objects presented during his talk amazed many of the group of Kiwanians, as did also the quality of tones of the bells.

Kiwanians Of Keyser Hear Bells

KEYSER, W. Va.—William W. Wolfe, North Church Street, Keyser, was guest speaker at the weekly dinner meeting of Keyser Kiwanis Club Wednesday evening.

His talk was one of the most interesting this season, using as his subject, "The Bells of India." His talk was illustrated by the presentation and ringing of bells imported from India, bells that are used in various steps of life in the oriental countries of the East.

The speaker has been gathering bells from India, Indonesia, Bali and Tibet for a number of years, enlarging his collection through personal contacts with missionaries and others who have visited the Eastern Countries.

The construction of the bells as well as their size, tone pitches, size and shape were impressed on his audience, and of especial interest were some of the bells made from wood, some from the heart of the palm trees, which were suprise offerings because of the resonant tones. A set of bells laboriously cut into tuning forks from the base to the tip all around, with a tapper on the inside drew great attention because of their accurate multiple clear tones blending with each stroke.

Most of the bells are made of brass, while others are of cheaper metal. Decorations on the bells and other objects presented during his talk amazed many of the group of Kiwanians, as did also the quality of tones of the bells.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Comes the weekend two people well known in motion pictures will elope. I am speaking of Bob Schwartz, who handles Steve Cochran and Robert Clark. His bride-to-be is Shirley Stevens, cute little free-lance press agent.

Marilyn Maxwell has turned author and has had an outline of her book accepted by eastern publishers. She's calling her story "The Laughs Make Me Cry."

Ray Milland is flying from Kanab, Utah, to attend Sonja Henie's party tomorrow night — that's the kind of parties my girl friend gives. No one wants to miss them.

Tommy Dorsey is planning to leave California permanently and for that reason he'll sell his Casino Gardens dance hall at Santa Monica which has been a gold mine.

Before Linda Darnell took off for New Orleans she was at Ciro's with Bob Calhoun for the Evelyn Knight opening.

Alistair MsIntosh, once married to Constance Talmadge, is reported about to marry Eva Spillman, very social.

That's all today. See you Monday.

The character of a short, strapless dress must be in key with the occasion for which you plan to wear it.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

The short, strapless dress is a tricky thing to wear. You can actually look overdressed in it under starlight . . . but perfectly right under sunlight! That is true of no other fashion.

Just try wearing to an informal evening party the short baretop in its most formal version without a cover-up stole or jacket and you are sure to feel as overdressed as Cinderella, come to the ball on the wrong night. Yet, in its casual version, say in peasanty cotton, the same style looks and feels right in the broad daylight on the beach, under a tree or even when you're putting up jelly!

Feminine, not Siren

Since my fashion scouts tell me that this style is growing in popularity, just be sure that the one that catches your eye is of a material and character that will be in keeping with the occasion for which you plan to wear it.

Among the other summer evening fashions this year, you can choose with no other concern except their flattery to you, and of that you will find aplenty! The special appeal of the season's offerings is feminine, rather than siren—the kind of glamor the male contingent most admires.

With few exceptions, the prettiest dancing dresses ripple out from tight bodices in waves of sheer fabric;they are ballerina in type rather than slinkly molded. Be sure to see the highly eye-catching designs with aprons that give a Dresden shepherdess effect when draped over full underskirts, and the tucked-up tunics that reveal a swoosh of confectionery petticoat.

The impudence of the completely strapless dress is giving way to more seductive treatments. While decolletages are low, they are often supported by V-shaped halters, string or wide straps, dropped from little cap or capelet sleeves or from a cowl collar.

If you have any difficulty making a choice between the short and floor-sweeping lengths in dance dresses, consider the short dress that comes ensembled with a long, detachable underskirt. There is a buy!

Fetching Fashions

With an eye to fall, take a good look at lace, and at the high summer colors that are sure to create talk in the autmn: Cocoa, grey, beige, any ombre, gold, fire, black, an dyour most becoming blue.

For evening allure, don't overlook the posy or glitter ornament in your hair or the self-adhesive jewel on your shoulder! That is, if fetching and fashion are synonymous words in your book of charm!

City Resident Awarded Georgetown Degree

Miss Patricia Ann Geatz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Geatz, 11 South Smallwood Street, received a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the Georgetown University School of Nursing at commencement exercises Monday.

A graduate of Ursuline Academy, she was the only nurse in her class to be awarded a degree. Miss Geatz was president of the Nursing School Student Council.

Road Equipment Bids Asked

Another move was made yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to bring the County Roads Department into a better state of efficiency.

The commissioners authorized J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor, to advertise for bids on three additional pieces of equipment to be used by the department. Last week bids were asked on two dump trucks.

Yesterday bids were authorized on a truck loader, a heavy duty motor patrol grader and a pickup truck. The loader specifications listed the following requirements. Rubber tired vehicle for loading windrowed and stockpile materials which must have fully enclosed cab with safety glass, heater, windshield wipers, overhead blinker, along with tail and working lights.

The heavy duty patrol grader must have tandem drive with at least 100 horsepower diesel, two or four cycle engine, either hydraulic or mechanically operated power controls, weight of not less than 22,000 pounds including scarifier and accessories: 12-foot moldboard, "V" type scarifier, all steel cab with safety glass and 30 gallon fuel tank.

The pickup truck is to be of three-fourths ton type with heater, defroster, rear and side view mirrors and windshield wipers. The bid must be accompanied by an offer for a 1947 one-ton pick truck as a trade-in on the new vehicle.

Members of the board said the new equipment will be of great help in maintenance work on county roads and is badly needed. It is only the beginning of a program to bring the department's equipment up to date, they added.

Lawn, Garden Worms Classed Unharmful

Persons who have found long thread-like worms in their gardens or on their lawns should not be alarmed as they are not harmful to either man or animals and, in fact, are beneficial as they feed on grasshoppers and other insects, according to Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent.

Steger said he has received more than a dozen calls about the worms and sent one of them to Theodore L. Bissell, entomologist at the University of Maryland, for classification. Bissell wrote Steger that the worms were parasites and fed off grasshoppers and other harmful insects.

The worms in question are from four to six inches in length and are about as thick as No. 50 sewing thread.

The first mustard manufactured in America was made in 1768 in Philadelphia by Benjamin Jackson.

When he starts correcting her age in public, you can be sure the honeymoon is over.

Talked with Peter Howard, Mrs. George Vanderbilt's son, who is here. He told me he is going to join his mother, and stepfather, George Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Clark Gable on their yacht in Honolulu.

He said he talked to Sylvia and that she may continue the trip to the South Sea islands.

"I can only stay a short time in Honolulu," Peter said, "because my fiancee, Betsy Von Furstenburg, is coming out to test for motion pictures, and I want to be here."

He said Sylvia sounds happy.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Comes the weekend two people well known in motion pictures will elope. I am speaking of Bob Schwartz, who handles Steve Cochran and Robert Clark. His bride-to-be is Shirley Stevens, cute little free-lance press agent.

Marilyn Maxwell has turned author and has had an outline of her book accepted by eastern publishers. She's calling her story "The Laughs Make Me Cry."

Ray Milland is flying from Kanab, Utah, to attend Sonja Henie's party tomorrow night — that's the kind of parties my girl friend gives. No one wants to miss them.

Tommy Dorsey is planning to leave California permanently and for that reason he'll sell his Casino Gardens dance hall at Santa Monica which has been a gold mine.

Lew Ayres is devoting all his time to art these days. He turned down a picture so he can keep painting. Any Hollywood actor or actress who isn't painting these days just isn't in style.

Before Linda Darnell took off for New Orleans she was at Ciro's with Bob Calhoun for the Evelyn Knight opening.

Alistair MsIntosh, once married to Constance Talmadge, is reported about to marry Eva Spillman, very social.

That's all today. See you Monday.

The character of a short, strapless dress must be in key with the occasion for which you plan to wear it.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

The short, strapless dress is a tricky thing to wear. You can actually look overdressed in it under starlight . . . but perfectly right under sunlight! That is true of no other fashion.

Just try wearing to an informal evening party the short baretop in its most formal version without a cover-up stole or jacket and you are sure to feel as overdressed as Cinderella, come to the ball on the wrong night. Yet, in its casual version, say in peasanty cotton, the same style looks and feels right in the broad daylight on the beach, under a tree or even when you're putting up jelly!

Feminine, not Siren

Since my fashion scouts tell me that this style is growing in popularity, just be sure that the one that catches your eye is of a material and character that will be in keeping with the occasion for which you plan to wear it.

Among the other summer evening fashions this year, you can choose with no other concern except their flattery to you, and of that you will find aplenty! The special appeal of the season's offerings is feminine, rather than siren—the kind of glamor the male contingent most admires.

With few exceptions, the prettiest dancing dresses ripple out from tight bodices in waves of sheer fabric;they are ballerina in type rather than slinkly molded. Be sure to see the highly eye-catching designs with aprons that give a Dresden shepherdess effect when draped over full underskirts, and the tucked-up tunics that reveal a swoosh of confectionery petticoat.

The impudence of the completely strapless dress is giving way to more seductive treatments. While decolletages are low, they are often supported by V-shaped halters, string or wide straps, dropped from little cap or capelet sleeves or from a cowl collar.

If you have any difficulty making a choice between the short and floor-sweeping lengths in dance dresses, consider the short dress that comes ensembled with a long, detachable underskirt. There is a buy!

Fetching Fashions

With an eye to fall, take a good look at lace, and at the high summer colors that are sure to create talk in the autmn: Cocoa, grey, beige, any ombre, gold, fire, black, an dyour most becoming blue.

For evening allure, don't overlook the posy or glitter ornament in your hair or the self-adhesive jewel on your shoulder! That is, if fetching and fashion are synonymous words in your book of charm!

City Resident Awarded Georgetown Degree

Miss Patricia Ann Geatz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Geatz, 11 South Smallwood Street, received a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the Georgetown University School of Nursing at commencement exercises Monday.

A graduate of Ursuline Academy, she was the only nurse in her class to be awarded a degree. Miss Geatz was president of the Nursing School Student Council.

Road Equipment Bids Asked

Another move was made yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to bring the County Roads Department into a better state of efficiency.

The commissioners authorized J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor, to advertise for bids on three additional pieces of equipment to be used by the department. Last week bids were asked on two dump trucks.

Yesterday bids were authorized on a truck loader, a heavy duty motor patrol grader and a pickup truck. The loader specifications listed the following requirements. Rubber tired vehicle for loading windrowed and stockpile materials which must have fully enclosed cab with safety glass, heater, windshield wipers, overhead blinker, along with tail and working lights.

The heavy duty patrol grader must have tandem drive with at least 100 horsepower diesel, two or four cycle engine, either hydraulic or mechanically operated power controls, weight of not less than 22,000 pounds including scarifier and accessories: 12-foot moldboard, "V" type scarifier, all steel cab with safety glass and 30 gallon fuel tank.

The pickup truck is to be of three-fourths ton type with heater, defroster, rear and side view mirrors and windshield wipers. The bid must be accompanied by an offer for a 1947 one-ton pick truck as a trade-in on the new vehicle.

Members of the board said the new equipment will be of great help in maintenance work on county roads and is badly needed. It is only the beginning of a program to bring the department's equipment up to date, they added.

Lawn, Garden Worms Classed Unharmful

Persons who have found long thread-like worms in their gardens or on their lawns should not be alarmed as they are not harmful to either man or animals and, in fact, are beneficial as they feed on grasshoppers and other insects, according to Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent.

Steger said he has received more than a dozen calls about the worms and sent one of them to Theodore L. Bissell, entomologist at the University of Maryland, for classification. Bissell wrote Steger that the worms were parasites and fed off grasshoppers and other harmful insects.

The worms in question are from four to six inches in length and are about as thick as No. 50 sewing thread.

The first mustard manufactured in America was made in 1768 in Philadelphia by Benjamin Jackson.

A Little Bit Of Everything

"What's My Name?" will certainly be accused of being patterned after "What's My Line?" and there will be considerable justice in the accusation. In fact, a whole mess of other programs could lay claim to originating bits and pieces of "What's My Name?" — everything from "Truth and Consequences" to Charlie McCarthy. They weren't taking any chances with this one, brother. It's got everything.

John Crosby

It's got, to get into the details, Paul Winchell, and his dummy, Jerry Mahoney; it's got quiz questions, charades, comedy routines, and that indispensable prop, the telephone, which is gradually becoming the principal source of income and gifts of half the United States. That's an awful lot of conflicting ideas to cram into half an hour. Still, if you like quizzes, if you like charades, if you adore the telephone, if you're crazy about dummies on ventriloquists laps, and, if above all, you own a television set, you'll find this patchwork quilt holds together rather well.

• — • — •

The show opens with Winchell and Mahoney hurling jokes back and forth. "Yesterday you were the picture of health." "A different picture is playing today." The interchanges between these two follow the accepted form, that curious inverted relationship between master and dummy, which must have been laid down in Euripedes' day. At least, there is a considerable body of literature involving dummies and invariably, you'll find the dummy holds the upper hand.

It's a curious psychological twist, this ascendancy of wood over flesh, and one that I prefer to keep at a safe distance. I wouldn't have one of the darn things in the house. First thing you know I'd be running errands for it. Ben Hecht once wrote a story about a dummy that broke up a romance between a ventriloquist and his true love and eventually shattered the ventriloquist entirely. There is more than a touch of the devil in all these insolent, all-knowing, sensual critters. They're a sort of nether fantasy of man, mankind unhoused by normal rules. Enough about dummies.

After the original badinage, Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Winchell settle down to quizzing the contestants, with Mahoney doing most of the work. A small sketch is enacted. A nasal character, obviously Will Rogers, comes into a lunch counter in Alaska, passes out a collection of the Rogers brand of wisdom, and then announces he is on a flying trip around the world. Who is his companion? (Wiley Post, incidentally, has been the answer to a lot of quiz questions lately. These people must be getting their questions from the same source.)

• — • — •

The dramatized quiz question has entered television with such vehemence that I suppose we'll have to get used to it. It's just a form of charades, a game as old as the rivers, but to my knowledge it's always been amateur sport. On television, the actors are professionals, a brand new branch of show business and one, I expect, that will end up with its own union and professional standards. Right now the professional standards are fairly low. The other night on "What's My Name?" an actor and actress were required to run through a pantomime of the death scene in Romeo and Juliet—what were their last names was the question — and — well, the acting fell pretty far short even of Norma Shearer's interpretation in the movies many years ago.

Eventually, Mr. Winchell gets around to calling Lansing, Michigan, or some such place and asking the viewer what's somebody's name. This is the jackpot question, a fairly tough one, though nothing like those limericks invented by "Truth Or Consequences." The guy in Lansing — or wherever — usually misses which means the next jackpot gets bigger. I just throw that information in there in case you have a telephone, a reasonable fund of information and a lot of bills.

My attention has been called many times to the fact that Mr. Winchell is one of the most technically competent ventriloquists in the business. I guess he is all right. At least he does some pretty startling things like siging duets and even trios with his dummies. But his techniques and the general outlines of his act with Mahoney is very similar to Edgar Bergen's with Charlie McCarthy, a little too close sometimes for comfort.

By JOHN CROSBY

A Little Bit Of Everything

"What's My Name?" will certainly be accused of being patterned after "What's My Line?" and there will be considerable justice in the accusation. In fact, a whole mess of other programs could lay claim to originating bits and pieces of "What's My Name?" — everything from "Truth and Consequences" to Charlie McCarthy. They weren't taking any chances with this one, brother. It's got everything.

John Crosby

It's got, to get into the details, Paul Winchell, and his dummy, Jerry Mahoney; it's got quiz questions, charades, comedy routines, and that indispensable prop, the telephone, which is gradually becoming the principal source of income and gifts of half the United States. That's an awful lot of conflicting ideas to cram into half an hour. Still, if you like quizzes, if you like charades, if you adore the telephone, if you're crazy about dummies on ventriloquists laps, and, if above all, you own a television set, you'll find this patchwork quilt holds together rather well.

• — • — •

The show opens with Winchell and Mahoney hurling jokes back and forth. "Yesterday you were the picture of health." "A different picture is playing today." The interchanges between these two follow the accepted form, that curious inverted relationship between master and dummy, which must have been laid down in Euripedes' day. At least, there is a considerable body of literature involving dummies and invariably, you'll find the dummy holds the upper hand.

It's a curious psychological twist, this ascendancy of wood over flesh, and one that I prefer to keep at a safe distance. I wouldn't have one of the darn things in the house. First thing you know I'd be running errands for it. Ben Hecht once wrote a story about a dummy that broke up a romance between a ventriloquist and his true love and eventually shattered the ventriloquist entirely. There is more than a touch of the devil in all these insolent, all-knowing, sensual critters. They're a sort of nether fantasy of man, mankind unhoused by normal rules. Enough about dummies.

After the original badinage, Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Winchell settle down to quizzing the contestants, with Mahoney doing most of the work. A small sketch is enacted. A nasal character, obviously Will Rogers, comes into a lunch counter in Alaska, passes out a collection of the Rogers brand of wisdom, and then announces he is on a flying trip around the world. Who is his companion? (Wiley Post, incidentally, has been the answer to a lot of quiz questions lately. These people must be getting their questions from the same source.)

• — • — •

The dramatized quiz question has entered television with such vehemence that I suppose we'll have to get used to it. It's just a form of charades, a game as old as the rivers, but to my knowledge it's always been amateur sport. On television, the actors are professionals, a brand new branch of show business and one, I expect, that will end up with its own union and professional standards. Right now the professional standards are fairly low. The other night on "What's My Name?" an actor and actress were required to run through a pantomine of the death scene in Romeo and Juliet—what were their last names was the question — and — well, the acting fell pretty far short even of Norma Shearer's interpretation in the movies many years ago.

Eventually, Mr. Winchell gets around to calling Lansing, Michigan, or some such place and asking the viewer what's somebody's name. This is the jackpot question, a fairly tough one, though nothing like those limericks invented by "Truth Or Consequences." The guy in Lansing — or wherever — usually misses which means the next jackpot gets bigger. I just throw that information in there in case you have a telephone, a reasonable fund of information and a lot of bills.

My attention has been called many times to the fact that Mr. Winchell is one of the most technically competent ventriloquists in the business. I guess he is all right. At least he does some pretty startling things like siging duets and even trios with his dummies. But his techniques and the general outlines of his act with Mahoney is very similar to Edgar Bergen's with Charlie McCarthy, a little too close sometimes for comfort.

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved husband and son, Ralph T. Leasure, who departed this life one year ago, June 16, 1950.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still.
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Treasured thoughts of you
Often bring silent tears,
Thoughts return to scenes long past
Time rolls on but memories last.
We think of him in silence
When no eyes can see us weep,
But many tears are shed
When others are asleep.
We have lost our soul's companion
A life linked with our own,
And day by day we miss him more
As we walk through life alone.

Sadly missed by his wife, mother and father, brothers and sisters
Mrs. Phyllis Leasure

In Memoriam

In memory of our beloved husband and son, Ralph T. Leasure, who departed this life one year ago, June 16, 1950.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still.
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
Treasured thoughts of you
Often bring silent tears.
Thoughts return to scenes long past
Time rolls on but memories last.
We think of him in silence
When no eyes can see us weep,
But many tears are shed
When others are asleep.
We have lost our soul's companion
A life linked with our own.
And day by day we miss him more
As we walk through life alone.

Sadly missed by his wife, mother and father, brothers and sisters
Mrs. Phyllis Leasure

Jim Tatum Replies To Penn; Maryland Lines Up With NCAA

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 15 (AP) — Jim Tatum, University of Maryland grid coach, lined up with the NCAA today against television of football games.

Tatum outlined his and the university's position in a letter to Francis T. Murray, director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania.

The letter was in reply to a query from Murphy which asked Tatum to join with the University of Pennsylvania in asking the attorney general of the United States for a ruling as to whether the NCAA action requiring Penn to discontinue televising Franklin Field football games was legal.

"Television is so good that I am afraid three or four games each Saturday will have all the spectators. Even if we came up with the attractive game of the day two or three Saturdays during the schedule, I am afraid that our other gates would suffer so much that we couldn't exist," Tatum wrote.

Jim Tatum Replies To Penn; Maryland Lines Up With NCAA

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 15 (AP) — Jim Tatum, University of Maryland grid coach, lined up with the NCAA today against television of football games.

Tatum outlined his and the university's position in a letter to Francis T. Murray, director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania.

The letter was in reply to a query from Murphy which asked Tatum to join with the University of Pennsylvania in asking the attorney general of the United States for a ruling as to whether the NCAA action requiring Penn to discontinue televising Franklin Field football games was legal.

"Television is so good that I am afraid three or four games each Saturday will have all the spectators. Even if we came up with the attractive game of the day two or three Saturdays during the schedule, I am afraid that our other gates would suffer so much that we couldn't exist," Tatum wrote.

Two Men Held In Mine Explosions

Pair Waives Extradition To West Virginia

Arrests Follow Fire And Explosions At Crellin Strip Mine

Two Maryland coal miners, arraigned before Associate Judge George Henderson in Circuit Court here yesterday, waived extradition for removal to West Virginia on a charge of malicious destruction of property.

The pair, identified as brother-in-laws, Frederick Robert Solomon, 31, of Garrett County, and Thomas Edgar Friend, 31, this county, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Maryland State Trooper Robert Henline, who was working with West Virginia authorities on the case.

They are specifically accused, authorities reported, of being connected with the explosions and fires which destroyed a steam shovel and bulldozer near Crellin, Md., in Preston County, W. Va., Saturday night.

Taken To Kingwood

After waiving extradition here, they were taken into custody by West Virginia State Trooper H. E. Parks and taken to Kingwood, where they are lodged in the Preston County jail. According to Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson, they are being held pending a hearing on charges of felonies.

The explosions and fires, which resulted in damage estimated at $62,000, occurred about 8 p. m. last Saturday night at a strip mine operation of the Daugherty Coal Company. The firm is owned by Elmer Grim, Forrest Bergdoll and Robert Roberts, and the operation is located in Preston County, just over the line a short distance from Crellin, Md.

Authorities indicated here that there may be two other men implicated, but only these two were reported in custody yesterday.

Saturday night's blasts and fires were another in the series of violence which have plagued the Preston County coal fields for the past several months.

Five Houses Burned

West Virginia State Police and the sheriff's office at Kingwood are continuing an investigation into the burning of five unoccupied houses early Tuesday morning on property owned by Leslie Halbritter, about two miles from Tunnelton.

State Police Cpl. W. L. Pike said the houses were apparently set ablaze sometime Monday night. They were found levelled and smouldering about 6:30 a. m. Tuesday. Damage was estimated at between $9,000 and $10,000 by the owner.

Cpl. Pike added several suspects are being investigated.

Halbritter, an uncle of R. Doyne Halbritter, prosecuting attorney of Preston County, is not actively engaged in the coal business, State Police said, but has leased land he owned to strip operators.

Preston County Prosecuting Attorney R. Doyne Halbritter made 21 presentations to the Preston County Grand Jury Tuesday morning in Kingwood, W. Va., but none involves mine violence or vandalism, he added.

Vandalism Reported

Several acts of vandalism at coal working have been reported since last year in the area. Nobody has ever been arrested and no official theory has been advanced.

There's been picketing of non-union mines but damage to equipment has been reported at both organized and unorganized workings.

In May of 1950, 31 mine operators and truckers complained the

GAIL FURLOW

Miss Furlow Compiles Fort HillScrapbook

Includes Dramatics, Scholastics, Music

The 1951 Fort Hill High School Scrapbook was recently completed by Miss Gail Furlow, a member of the graduating class this year. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Furlow, Oak Street.

Included in this year's Scrapbook are the various activities of the school including scholastics, dramatics, music and athletics as well as other highlights. Outstanding in the book are the division pages which were designed by Miss Furlow.

The compiling of the book is an annual custom and affords a running account of Fort Hill's activities and accomplishments. In this manner a permanent record is maintained in the principal's office.

Besides editing the Scrapbook this year, Miss Furlow was active in the Dramatic Club, the Tri-Hi-Y, on the Sentinel Staff, the Seneca Staff, Girl's Glee Club and the coordinating group of the Junior Town Meeting League.

She has been an honor roll student throughout school and was selected as a member of the National Honor Society in her senior year.

May Dustfall Is Record Low

Dustfall was at a record low during May, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, reported yesterday.

An average of 11.55 tons of dirt, fly ash and solid particles fell upon the city last month, he added, for the lowest dust reading since the Smoke Abatement Department records began.

A steady decrease in dustfall has been recorded this year, he said. In January, the average was 26.54 tons per square mile; February, 30.33; March, 15.61; April, 12.34 and May, 11.55.

The city's 1949 average was 28.87 tons, followed by an 31.24 average last year.

During 1949, Hitchcock said, Cumberland compared well with cities having smoke abatement programs. He cited the following dustfall averages for that year:

Pittsburgh, 51.5 tons; Milwaukee, 36.8; Chicago, 33.94; Cumberland, 28.87, and Cincinnati, 27.84.

Arnold, Johnson To Attend Union School

Two members of Local 26, Rubber Workers (CIO), have been named to attend the Rubber Workers summer school.

C. G. Arnold and Delton Johnson were named by the Executive Board to attend sessions the week of July 16 in Columbus, Ohio.

Sewage Disposal Plans Are Over Third Complete

Army Engineers Study Plant Site

Final plans for Cumberland's sewage treatment plant are rapidly taking shape, according to Robert T. Regester, Baltimore, consulting engineer for the project.

Regester said final plans and specifications for the plant designed to take care of the needs of the Cumberland metropolitan area are a third or more complete.

When the plans are finished this fall, the City of Cumberland will be in a position to ask bids for the actual construction work, estimated to cost about $1,480,000.

The Mayor and Council last month authorized the Regester firm to proceed with work on detailed plans of the project after deciding to adopt the metropolitan plan rather than an alternate plan based on needs of this city alone.

Regester conferred this week with Mayor Thomas S. Post, Acting City Engineer William Marean and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson on problems in connection with the final stages of the work, including the incorporation of city plans for sewage facilities in the Bedford Road area.

Needed would be a pumping station near Naves Crossroads and a force main from the station to Shade's Lane where it would connect with an existing sewer.

Sewage in the Bedford Road area would be diverted to the Evitts Creek interceptor sewer and thence to the treatment plant.

Army Engineers, Regester said, are making an analysis of the preferred site for the treatment plant. He termed the area lying between the old C. and O. Canal and the Potomac River, at the outlet of the main interceptor near the foot of Offutt Street, as the best possible location .

An alternate site near the mouth of Evitts Creek between the B. and O. tracks and Oldtown Road, he said, is less desirable and the city would have to acquire the land.

Site C, near the Western Maryland bridge at Welton Tunnel, would be a last resort.

Railroads Seek To Curb Partial Smoke Violations

Record Year Possible, Hitchcock Reports

A discussion on plans to reduce the partial and bad smoke violations on railroads here was held at a Cumberland Terminal Meeting Tuesday.

A. E. Beckman, master mechanic for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, chairman for the meeting, reported partial violations were chalked up last month for about 12 per cent of all observations made by the Smoke Abatement office.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad observations resulted in 239 "clear stacks;" 29 partial violations and four "bad" violations among the 272 observations.

The Western Maryland Railway escaped with three partial violations among its 26 observations but averaged 12 per cent partials on all observations.

Cited were Baltimore and Ohio locomotives No. 6212, which was observed making No. 3 smoke for five minutes at Queen City Station; No. 7209, for No. 3 smoke for the same time at Bedford Street, and No. 6119, for No. 3 and 2 smoke at Bedford Street.

George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, pointed out that the yard dieselization program in the B. and O. yards is having its effect upon the dustfall in this city.

Citing the low 12.34 tons of dirt, fly ash and solids noted in April, Hitchcock said 80 per cent of the improvement in smoke and dust here resulted from efforts of railroads toward cmoke abatement.

Hitchcock added that if readings here remain in the improvement column as they have so far this year, "it looks as if we will head the nation's dustfall readings in 1951."

Street Oiling Plan Awaits OK Of Weatherman

This city's street oiling program is slated to get under way next week if the weatherman promises fair weather.

The program, which will take about six weeks to complete, was scheduled to open early last week.

Heavy rains delayed the opening of the program and in some cases eroded the surfaces of several streets which had been prepared for actual oiling.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said that it is impossible to do the job properly unless the roadway is well dried out.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said the work will start in the Lindnerville section and will proceed on a balanced schedule.

The work will include the grading, cleaning of gutters, shaping, rolling and finally oiling the unpaved streets.

Town Creek Farmer's Will Probated

The will of William A. Shryock, 84, farmer of the Town Creek section, who died March 29, was admitted to probate yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

His daughter, Mrs. Mary L. Alderton, Oldtown, was named executrix. She also was bequeathed the home place and another property which her father had acquired from Wesley Shryock. A son, Edward I. Shryock, was left another property which his father had obtained from Martin L. Shryock. A second son, Charles M. Shryock, was left $700. The will also provided that his children should take care of his widow, Mrs. Geneva Shryock, as long as she lives.

Althought the will was dated May 1, 1939, it was not witnessed and signed until March 30, 1950. A codicil, by which Shryock had sought to lower the bequest to Charles M. Shryock from $700 to $500 was denied probate because it was not properly witnessed.

Munshower Says Troopers Used Too Much On Non-Highway Cases

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 15 (AP)—Maryland's state superintendent of police believes his troopers are being used too much in cases outside the area of their responsibility.

Col. Elmer S. Munshower expressed that opinion today as magistrates, safety leaders, highway and police officials gathered for a two-day conference on traffic safety.

Munshower said that in one area he checked 97 cases handled by state police, and not one of them dealt with a highway problem.

He said that such use of state police defeats the purpose for which the force was organized.

Sidney J. Williams, assistant president of the National Safety Council, gave the featured address on traffic safety.

Williams spoke of the three elements involved in traffic accidents, the car, the highway and the driver. The car and the road are engineering problems, he said.

And he gave three driver reasons for accidents:

(1) The driver can't drive well for physical or mental reasons, including drunkenness, (2) The driver doesn't know how to drive properly, (3) The driver knows how to drive safely, but lacks the proper attitude.

He said intensified education and law enforcement were the only solutions to the driver problem.

Earlier, Gov. McKeldin asked the state's trial magistrates to crack down harder on traffic violators. He said the state's highway safety record is "horrible."

The fact that Maryland driving licenses need not be renewed after original issuance came up in a question and answer period sponsored by Williams.

Williams said there should be a state law requiring renewals periodically as a means of keeping a check on drivers.

State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd took the floor and agreed with Williams.

He said he thought Maryland was the only state that did not require periodic renewals.

12 Cresaptown Junior High Graduates Get High Rank

Twelve of the 53 graduates of Cresaptown Junior High School received scholarship honors at the commencement exercises Thursday.

Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, discussed "Factors For Success" in his address to the graduates. He used the letters in the word Cresaptown as steps up the ladder of success.

Coincidentally, unknowingly, Rev. Keefe spoke on a subject that was familiar to the Cresaptown ninth graders. Their class motto is "Success is the Light of Life."

Presents Awards

Scholarship honors went to Clara Martz, Dorothy Niner, James Clem and James Moore, first; Doris Clayton, Joyce O'Neal, Leroy Clem and Hayden Dawson, second, and Nancy McGill, Joan Robison, Carl Bechie and Eugene Crossland, third.

Twenty-two of the 53 graduates—34 boys and 19 girls—received attendance awards. A three-day allowance was permitted so that any pupil who missed three days or fewer was honored. Tops among these was Hayden Dawson who has not missed a single day in nine years of schooling. Lola Chaney has won attendance honors nine consecutive years with the three-day allowance, five of these years without missing a single day. George Ross, with benefit of the three-day allowance, has had eight years of attendance records.

Special "Star" awards were presented to 35 Cresaptown School pupils, 11 in the ninth grade, 18 in the eighth and six in the seventh. These awards are based on participation in various activities, high percentage of attendance, high scholastic standing and citizenship.

Gets First Honor

First honors and a sweater as prize went to Star Winner Doris Clayton, who amassed 1,319 points. Next to her was Nancy McGill, who with 1,279 points, received a cash award. Both are ninth graders. Other star winners among the graduating class were Hayden Dawson, Dorothy Niner, Lane Heavner, Lola Chaney, Donald Davidson, Joyce O'Neal, Thomas Galliher, James Moore and Betty Twigg.

Other star winners were Childre Bridges, Roy Chaney, Kenneth Sines, Jackie Taylor, Jean Mick, Shirley Strawser, Juanita Heavner, Leanna McGettigan, Maxine Bohrer, Zeddie Bowen, Dale Merritt, Betty Gerhart, Barbara Tyree, Anna Belle Lawrence, Margaret Monnett, Jo Anne White, Virginia Shearer, and Norma Clem, eighth graders; Shirley Twigg, Jo Anne Kidwell, Rodney Breedlove, Robert Jones, Marjorie Lewis and Eva Mae Helmstetter.

Thirty-eight other sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth graders received "C" awards.

Rev. J. Brook Heavner, pastor of Prosperity Methodist Church, delivered the invocation and benediction.

Corps Of Engineers To Mark Its 176th Anniversary Today

The Corps of Engineers, a part of the Department of the Army that at times during its career has owned and operated more boats than the United States Navy, celebrates its birthday today.

It was on June 16, 1775, that the Continental Congress voted authorization for one chief of engineers and two assistants "in a separate department."

The Continental Congress, on December 27, 1776, authorized General Washington to "raise and collect an engineer force for a period of six months."

On March 11, 1779, it was resolved "That the engineers in the service of the United States shall be formed into a corps and styled the "Corps of Engineers."

The official emblem, a turreted castle, adopted in 1839, indicated the early work of the corps, that of constructing fortifications for the armies.

Emblem Adopted

That emblem, adopted by the War Department, was long worn by West Point cadets on their dress caps.

The official flag of the corps, a white castle with scarlet background, was adopted in 1868.

The activities of the Army Engineers were increased gradually with the growth of a standing army.

In World War I, when aviation became a useful weapon of warfare, the Corps of Engineers was placed in charge of developing vital camouflage techniques.

The Corps of Engineers was also placed in charge of the construction and upkeep of all War Department installations.

World War II, which rapidly developed into an engineering war, increased the responsibilities of the corps for providing equipment and supplies to the army.

Tackles Big Jobs

The work of the Corps of Engineers, according to Thomas E. Dickson, engineer for the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control project, now includes the construction of army airfields, camp and cantonment areas, locks, dams, reservoirs, levees, dikes, jetties flood walls, bridges and fortifications.

They are also responsible for the design, development and testing of certain Army equipment, special research in engineering problems in the public interest and the maintenance and improvement of rivers, harbors and waterways.

Among some of the biggest jobs the Corps has completed are the Panama Canal and the great Alcan Highway.

During the past 25 years, Dickson said, the Corps had undertaken the task of controlling floods and has been responsible for river and harbor maintenance since 1824.

In connection with its work on rivers and harbors, the Corps of Engineers once owned and operated more boats, including dredges, barges, survey boats and other small craft, than the Navy.

Two Men Held In Mine Explosions

Pair Waives Extradition To West Virginia

Arrests Follow Fire And Explosions At Crellin Strip Mine

Two Maryland coal miners, arraigned before Associate Judge George Henderson in Circuit Court here yesterday, waived extradition for removal to West Virginia on a charge of malicious destruction of property.

The pair, identified as brother-in-laws, Frederick Robert Solomon, 31, of Garrett County, and Thomas Edgar Friend, 31, this county, were arrested Thursday afternoon by Maryland State Trooper Robert Henline, who was working with West Virginia authorities on the case.

They are specifically accused, authorities reported, of being connected with the explosions and fires which destroyed a steam shovel and bulldozer near Crellin, Md., in Preston County, W. Va., Saturday night.

Taken To Kingwood

After waiving extradition here, they were taken into custody by West Virginia State Trooper H. E. Parks and taken to Kingwood, where they are lodged in the Preston County jail. According to Preston County Sheriff J. H. Benson, they are being held pending a hearing on charges of felonies.

The explosions and fires, which resulted in damage estimated at $62,000, occurred about 8 p. m. last Saturday night at a strip mine operation of the Daugherty Coal Company. The firm is owned by Elmer Grim, Forrest Bergdoll and Robert Roberts, and the operation is located in Preston County, just over the line a short distance from Crellin, Md.

Authorities indicated here that there may be two other men implicated, but only these two were reported in custody yesterday.

Saturday night's blasts and fires were another in the series of violence which have plagued the Preston County coal fields for the past several months.

Five Houses Burned

West Virginia State Police and the sheriff's office at Kingwood are continuing an investigation into the burning of five unoccupied houses early Tuesday morning on property owned by Leslie Halbritter, about two miles from Tunnelton.

State Police Cpl. W. L. Pike said the houses were apparently set ablaze sometime Monday night. They were found levelled and smouldering about 6:30 a. m. Tuesday. Damage was estimated at between $9,000 and $10,000 by the owner.

Cpl. Pike added several suspects are being investigated.

Halbritter, an uncle of R. Doyne Halbritter, prosecuting attorney of Preston County, is not actively engaged in the coal business, State Police said, but has leased land he owned to strip operators.

Preston County Prosecuting Attorney R. Doyne Halbritter made 21 presentations to the Preston County Grand Jury Tuesday morning in Kingwood, W. Va., but none involves mine violence or vandalism, he added.

Vandalism Reported

Several acts of vandalism at coal working have been reported since last year in the area. Nobody has ever been arrested and no official theory has been advanced.

There's been picketing of non-union mines but damage to equipment has been reported at both organized and unorganized workings.

In May of 1950, 31 mine operators and truckers complained the

GAIL FURLOW

Miss Furlow Compiles Fort HillScrapbook

Includes Dramatics, Scholastics, Music

The 1951 Fort Hill High School Scrapbook was recently completed by Miss Gail Furlow, a member of the graduating class this year. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Furlow, Oak Street.

Included in this year's Scrapbook are the various activities of the school including scholastics, dramatics, music and athletics as well as other highlights. Outstanding in the book are the division pages which were designed by Miss Furlow.

The compiling of the book is an annual custom and affords a running account of Fort Hill's activities and accomplishments. In this manner a permanent record is maintained in the principal's office.

Besides editing the Scrapbook this year, Miss Furlow was active in the Dramatic Club, the Tri-Hi-Y, on the Sentinel Staff, the Seneca Staff, Girl's Glee Club and the coordinating group of the Junior Town Meeting League.

She has been an honor roll student throughout school and was selected as a member of the National Honor Society in her senior year.

May Dustfall Is Record Low

Dustfall was at a record low during May, George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, reported yesterday.

An average of 11.55 tons of dirt, fly ash and solid particles fell upon the city last month, he added, for the lowest dust reading since the Smoke Abatement Department records began.

A steady decrease in dustfall has been recorded this year, he said. In January, the average was 26.54 tons per square mile; February, 30.33; March, 15.61; April, 12.34 and May, 11.55.

The city's 1949 average was 28.87 tons, followed by an 31.24 average last year.

During 1949, Hitchcock said, Cumberland compared well with cities having smoke abatement programs. He cited the following dustfall averages for that year:

Pittsburgh, 51.5 tons; Milwaukee, 36.8; Chicago, 33.94; Cumberland, 28.87, and Cincinnati, 27.84.

Arnold, Johnson To Attend Union School

Two members of Local 26, Rubber Workers (CIO), have been named to attend the Rubber Workers summer school.

C. G. Arnold and Delton Johnson were named by the Executive Board to attend sessions the week of July 16 in Columbus, Ohio.

Sewage Disposal Plans Are Over Third Complete

Army Engineers Study Plant Site

Final plans for Cumberland's sewage treatment plant are rapidly taking shape, according to Robert T. Regester, Baltimore, consulting engineer for the project.

Regester said final plans and specifications for the plant designed to take care of the needs of the Cumberland metropolitan area are a third or more complete.

When the plans are finished this fall, the City of Cumberland will be in a position to ask bids for the actual construction work, estimated to cost about $1,480,000.

The Mayor and Council last month authorized the Regester firm to proceed with work on detailed plans of the project after deciding to adopt the metropolitan plan rather than an alternate plan based on needs of this city alone.

Regester conferred this week with Mayor Thomas S. Post, Acting City Engineer William Marean and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson on problems in connection with the final stages of the work, including the incorporation of city plans for sewage facilities in the Bedford Road area.

Needed would be a pumping station near Naves Crossroads and a force main from the station to Shade's Lane where it would connect with an existing sewer.

Sewage in the Bedford Road area would be diverted to the Evitts Creek interceptor sewer and thence to the treatment plant.

Army Engineers, Regester said, are making an analysis of the preferred site for the treatment plant. He termed the area lying between the old C. and O. Canal and the Potomac River, at the outlet of the main interceptor near the foot of Offutt Street, as the best possible location.

An alternate site near the mouth of Evitts Creek between the B. and O. tracks and Oldtown Road, he said, is less desirable and the city would have to acquire the land.

Site C, near the Western Maryland bridge at Welton Tunnel, would be a last resort.

Railroads Seek To Curb Partial Smoke Violations

Record Year Possible, Hitchcock Reports

A discussion on plans to reduce the partial and bad smoke violations on railroads here was held at a Cumberland Terminal Meeting Tuesday.

A. E. Beckman, master mechanic for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, chairman for the meeting, reported partial violations were chalked up last month for about 12 per cent of all observations made by the Smoke Abatement office.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad observations resulted in 239 "clear stacks;" 29 partial violations and four "bad" violations among the 272 observations.

The Western Maryland Railway escaped with three partial violations among its 26 observations but averaged 12 per cent partials on all observations.

Cited were Baltimore and Ohio locomotives No. 6212, which was observed making No. 3 smoke for five minutes at Queen City Station; No. 7209, for No. 3 smoke for the same time at Bedford Street, and No. 6119, for No. 3 and 2 smoke at Bedford Street.

George M. Hitchcock, smoke abatement engineer, pointed out that the yard dieselization program in the B. and O. yards is having its effect upon the dustfall in this city.

Citing the low 12.34 tons of dirt, fly ash and solids noted in April, Hitchcock said 80 per cent of the improvement in smoke and dust here resulted from efforts of railroads toward cmoke abatement.

Hitchcock added that if readings here remain in the improvement column as they have so far this year, "it looks as if we will head the nation's dustfall readings in 1951."

Street Oiling Plan Awaits OK Of Weatherman

This city's street oiling program is slated to get under way next week if the weatherman promises fair weather.

The program, which will take about six weeks to complete, was scheduled to open early last week.

Heavy rains delayed the opening of the program and in some cases eroded the surfaces of several streets which had been prepared for actual oiling.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said that it is impossible to do the job properly unless the roadway is well dried out.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said the work will start in the Lindnerville section and will proceed on a balanced schedule.

The work will include the grading, cleaning of gutters, shaping, rolling and finally oiling the unpaved streets.

Town Creek Farmer's Will Probated

The will of William A. Shryock, 84, farmer of the Town Creek section, who died March 29, was admitted to probate yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

His daughter, Mrs. Mary L. Alderton, Oldtown, was named executrix. She also was bequeathed the home place and another property which her father had acquired from Wesley Shryock. A son, Edward I. Shryock, was left another property which his father had obtained from Martin L. Shryock. A second son, Charles M. Shryock, was left $700. The will also provided that his children should take care of his widow, Mrs. Geneva Shryock, as long as she lives.

Althought the will was dated May 1, 1939, it was not witnessed and signed until March 30, 1950. A codicil, by which Shryock had sought to lower the bequest to Charles M. Shryock from $700 to $500 was denied probate because it was not properly witnessed.

Munshower Says Troopers Used Too Much On Non-Highway Cases

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 15 (AP)—Maryland's state superintendent of police believes his troopers are being used too much in cases outside the area of their responsibility.

Col. Elmer S. Munshower expressed that opinion today as magistrates, safety leaders, highway and police officials gathered for a two-day conference on traffic safety.

Munshower said that in one area he checked 97 cases handled by state police, and not one of them dealt with a highway problem.

He said that such use of state police defeats the purpose for which the force was organized.

Sidney J. Williams, assistant president of the National Safety Council, gave the featured address on traffic safety.

Williams spoke of the three elements involved in traffic accidents, the car, the highway and the driver. The car and the road are engineering problems, he said.

And he gave three driver reasons for accidents:

(1) The driver can't drive well for physical or mental reasons, including drunkenness, (2) The driver doesn't know how to drive properly, (3) The driver knows how to drive safely, but lacks the proper attitude.

He said intensified education and law enforcement were the only solutions to the driver problem.

Earlier, Gov. McKeldin asked the state's trial magistrates to crack down harder on traffic violators. He said the state's highway safety record is "horrible."

The fact that Maryland driving licenses need not be renewed after original issuance came up in a question and answer period sponsored by Williams.

Williams said there should be a state law requiring renewals periodically as a means of keeping a check on drivers.

State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd took the floor and agreed with Williams.

He said he thought Maryland was the only state that did not require periodic renewals.

Twelve of the 53 graduates of Cresaptown Junior High School received scholarship honors at the commencement exercises Thursday.

Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, discussed "Factors For Success" in his address to the graduates. He used the letters in the word Cresaptown as steps up the ladder of success.

Coincidentally, unknowingly, Rev. Keefe spoke on a subject that was familiar to the Cresaptown ninth graders. Their class motto is "Success is the Light of Life."

Miss Myra M. Nefflen, school principal, presented awards to outstanding graduates after Lewyn C. Davis, supervisor of junior high schools in Allegany County, distributed diplomas.

Twenty-two of the 53 graduates—34 boys and 19 girls—received attendance awards. A three-day allowance was permitted so that any pupil who missed three days or fewer was honored. Tops among these was Hayden Dawson who has not missed a single day in nine years of schooling. Lola Chaney has won attendance honors nine consecutive years with the three-day allowance, five of these years without missing a single day. George Ross, with benefit of the three-day allowance, has had eight years of attendance records.

Special "Star" awards were presented to 35 Cresaptown School pupils, 11 in the ninth grade, 18 in the eighth and six in the seventh. These awards are based on participation in various activities, high percentage of attendance, high scholastic standing and citizenship.

Corps Of Engineers To Mark Its 176th Anniversary Today

The Corps of Engineers, a part of the Department of the Army that at times during its career has owned and operated more boats than the United States Navy, celebrates its birthday today.

It was on June 16, 1775, that the Continental Congress voted authorization for one chief of engineers and two assistants "in a separate department."

The Continental Congress, on December 27, 1776, authorized General Washington to "raise and collect an engineer force for a period of six months."

On March 11, 1779, it was resolved "That the engineers in the service of the United States shall be formed into a corps and styled the "Corps of Engineers."

The official emblem, a turreted castle, adopted in 1839, indicated the early work of the corps, that of constructing fortifications for the armies.

Emblem Adopted

That emblem, adopted by the War Department, was long worn by West Point cadets on their dress caps.

The official flag of the corps, a white castle with scarlet background, was adopted in 1868.

The activities of the Army Engineers were increased gradually with the growth of a standing army.

In World War I, when aviation became a useful weapon of warfare, the Corps of Engineers was placed in charge of developing vital camouflage techniques.

The Corps of Engineers was also placed in charge of the construction and upkeep of all War Department installations.

World War II, which rapidly developed into an engineering war, increased the responsibilities of the corps for providing equipment and supplies to the army.

Tackles Big Jobs

The work of the Corps of Engineers, according to Thomas E. Dickson, engineer for the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control project, now includes the construction of army airfields, camp and cantonment areas, locks, dams, reservoirs, levees, dikes, jetties flood walls, bridges and fortifications.

They are also responsible for the design, development and testing of certain Army equipment, special research in engineering problems in the public interest and the maintenance and improvement of rivers, harbors and waterways.

Among some of the biggest jobs the Corps has completed are the Panama Canal and the great Alcan Highway.

During the past 25 years, Dickson said, the Corps had undertaken the task of controlling floods and has been responsible for river and harbor maintenance since 1824.

In connection with its work on rivers and harbors, the Corps of Engineers once owned and operated more boats, including dredges, barges, survey boats and other small craft, than the Navy.
